POLICYHOLDERS NOT LIABLE FOR INCOME CERTIFICATES ISSUED

Judge Bell, of Superior Court, Makes Importing Ruling Affecting Mutual Insurance Companies

DEMURRER OF GEORGIA COMPTROLLER SUSTAINED

Commissioner Wright Wins in Suit Brought by Income Certificate Holders of American Annuity

Holding in substance that the policy holders in mutual insurance companies are not liable for the amount of income certificates issued, Judge George L. Bell, of superior court, has handed down a number of orders in the case of Comptroller General William A. Wright against the American Life and Annuity company.

This decision is one of the most important made in the superior court in years for it affects all mutual companies doing business in Georgia, and other similar suits are now in the courts against different companies.

In the case of the American Annuity, a Georgia company, after it had been placed in the hands of General Wright, as insurance commissioner for liquidation, the holders of income certificates of a par value of $446,000 brought suit through Attorney Horton Smith against the policy holders, alleging they are liable in mutual companies for the amount of the certificates.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED.

A demurrer to the action was brought by Attorney Walter McElreath in the name of the insurance commissioner and this demurrer has been sustained by Judge Bell.

The litigation has taken an extremely sensational turn through one of the various orders handed down in the case by Judge Bell. In this he has adjudged J. A. McCrary, L. C. Tyus, of Barnesville and L. O. Benton, all well known citizens, and the First National Bank of Barnesville in contempt of court.

He has ordered that they be required to produce certain securities of the company on June 29. If these securities, valued at $15,000, have not been placed in the hands of the insurance commissioner by 5 o'clock on the afternoon of that day the sheriff is ordered to place Messrs. McCrary, Tyus and Benton in the custody of the law, and hold them there until such time as they may purge themselves of contempt.

The rule issued by Judge Bell is an interesting one and reads as a statement. If the parties are unable to produce the securities they are remanded to jail without a hearing.

HELD AS COLLATERAL.

The securities in question, which include stocks, valuable bank stock, were held as collateral for a note by the Barnesville bank and the three individuals.

It was announced some time ago that at a specified date the securities would be sold in Atlanta that the note might be paid.

The insurance commissioner secured from Judge Bell an injunction restraining the sale of the securities.

While the sale here was stopped it is alleged the defendants in the indictment proceedings took the securities out of the bank at Barnesville or some other point and there used them to bolster the bank's indebtedness. The proceeds of the sale were used to pay the note for which the securities had been placed in their hands as collateral, and the cancelled note was sent to the insurance commissioner.

The court, however, has held the parties in contempt and unless they can produce the securities, the order for their arrest is issued.

While Judge Bell by his orders has disposed of all the legal questions involved in the American Annuity litigation, the case will not have been closed in the superior court because the court will have to determine the costs. The commissioner will derive from the sale of all of the assets.

FIRE DRIVES RESCUERS FROM HILLCREST MINE

Workers After Securing Twenty Charred Bodies Are Forced to Flee

(By Associated Press.)

LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, June 20.—After recovering twenty charred bodies at 9 o'clock this morning, rescuers were driven from their work by fire at the mine of the Hillcrest, Alberta, Collieries, Ltd., where an explosion yesterday wrecked the underground workings and is believed to have killed 85 men.

Among the bodies recovered were those of Jacob Quigley, superintendent of the mine, and Thomas Taylor, fire boss.

Mine experts believed that most of the men were entombed above the fire, under timbers. But tons of rock, which fell after the explosion, debris and coal in the entrances and it seemed likely that many of the bodies will have to be recovered by digging. Early today, however, rescuers had no warning of the fire and bodies were found literally cooked. Identification were made by tailors or rocks.

Immorality, Movies And Baseball Help Increase Insanity

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—Insanity in Cook county is increasing more rapidly than the population, according to figures announced yesterday by John R. Owens, judge of the county court, showing the number of insanity cases tried since 1907. Immorality and the increasing complexity of city life were said by Judge Owens to be the chief causes of insanity.

The moving picture craze and baseball have played their parts in increasing the number of cases, according to Judge Owens. Both amusements, he said, too severely stimulate the emotions of those interested in them. The cases during the year 1913 numbered 2,470, and for the five months in 1914 ending May 31, 1,284.

Burke and Jimmie Conley, to be arraigned on charges of subornation of perjury and attempt to subornate perjury.

Ottoman Government to Also Pay Indemnity for Losses to Those Banished

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 20.—It was stated on good authority here today that the Turkish government has instructed its minister at Athens to inform the Greek government that Turkey is willing to permit the return of Greek subjects who were compelled recently to leave Turkish territory. The government, it is said, is ready to grant indemnity for the losses of those who were forced to flee, which the securities had been placed in their hands as collateral, and the cancelled note was sent to the insurance commissioner.

The court, however, has held the parties in contempt and unless they can produce the securities, the order for their arrest is issued.

While Judge Bell by his orders has disposed of all the legal questions involved in the American Annuity litigation, the case will not have been closed in the superior court because the court will have to determine the costs. The commissioner will derive from the sale of all of the assets.

BIPLANE RIPS OPEN BIG WAR DIRIGIBLE, KILLING NINE MEN

Biplane Rips Dirigible Airship During Maneuvers, Hurling Balloon's Occupants to Death

AIRSHIP TAKES FIRE, CAUSING EXPLOSION

Army Captain, Four Lieutenants, Naval Officer, Two Soldier Mechanics and Civil Engineer All Killed

(By Associated Press.)

VIENNA, June 20.—Nine aviators lost their lives today when a mimic war in the air was suddenly turned into tragic reality by the accidental ripping of a dirigible airship by a biplane while both were flying at a great height during the Austrian army maneuvers.

Both craft were destroyed and their occupants, military and naval officers and non-commissioned officers, were burned and mutilated beyond recognition.

The Austrian army dirigible balloon Coertling ascended at Fischamend, about twelve miles from Vienna, where there is a military aviation station. It was the intention of Captain Johann Hauswirth, he commander, to take photographs of the movements of the troops below and then to join in the maneuvers.

The aeroplane started half an hour later from the same spot. It was manned by Lieutenants Flatz and Hoosta. The mosquito craft soon overtook her big sister and immediately began a sham attack. After encircling the airship several times at a height of 1,500 feet the biplane's pilot suddenly maneuvered his craft with the object of taking a position directly above the airship.

The navigator evidently miscalculated his distance or his speed for the nose of the biplane grazed the envelope of the airship and ripped it open.

There was a terrific explosion and the airship took fire. The flames engulfed the biplane and in a few moments the remnants of both crafts crashed on the slope of a mountain with their occupants.

The bodies were so charred and mangled that they were scarcely recognizable.

The victims are Captain Johann Hauswirth, Lieutenants Ernst Haefstetter, Flatz, Hoosta, Bruer and Haidinger, Corporals Hadima and Weber, and Engineer Kammerer.

FRENCHMAN MAY LOSE RIGHTS OF CITIZENSHIP

Jules Raoul in Federal Prison Charged With Fraud in Getting Papers

Jules Raoul Blanc, a native Frenchman, now serving a term in the federal penitentiary here following his conviction for an infraction of the Mann white slave act, must, within the next sixty days appear before Judge William T. Newman, in the United States supreme court for the northern district of Georgia, and show cause why his rights of citizenship should not be taken away from him.

As the result of certain affidavits bearing on the character of Blanc, who received his naturalization papers in the United States district court at New Orleans May 13, 1912, District Attorney Hooper Alexander has filed charges against the prisoner alleging that his rights of citizenship were illegally procured and asking that his naturalization be revoked by the federal authorities.

According to government officials such action on the part of federal authorities is very rare indeed. Attachment of the witnesses and those connected with the United States marshal's office have recently been issued in this district never having been instituted here before.

"We already have what appears to be a prima facie case, showing this officer to have been guilty of receiving a deposit after he knew the bank to be insolvent," said Mr. Hoyne.

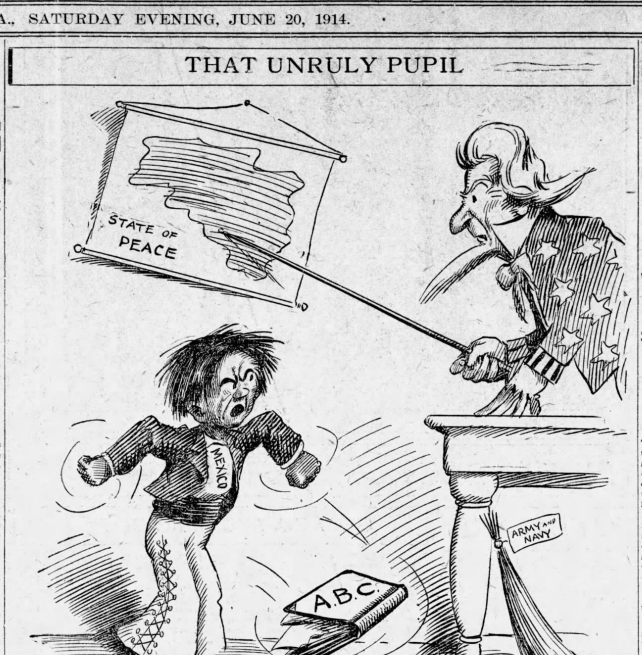
(By Associated Press.)

Representative Sharp had been considered for the Russian post but it was understood he was not acceptable to the St. Petersburg government because of his active connection with the passport question and the denunciation of the Russian treaty.

THAT UNRULY PUPIL



ASQUITH GIVES MILITANTS AUDIENCE IN RESIDENCE

Argues That If Women Got Votes They Would Not Be Satisfied

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 20.—Premier Asquith today fulfilled the promise to receive a deputation of suffragettes which he made to Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, the militant leader, when, after her recent temporary release from Holloway jail, she took up her position on the doorstep of the house of commons and threatened to carry out a hunger and thirst strike there until the promise was given.

A party of six working women, members of Miss Pankhurst's east end federation, today visited the prime minister at his official residence in Downing street.

A large crowd gathered in anticipation of the usual fight between the police and the women, but the proceedings were orderly except for a little roughness on the part of some workmen who had "come to see that their women got fair play." Their presence proved unnecessary, as the deputation came in taxicabs and was immediately received by the premier. The women, accompanied by George Lansbury, a former Socialist member of parliament, urged the cause of women suffrage from their special point of view.

Miss Pankhurst was not present, as Mr. Asquith had insisted that the deputation must be composed of genuine working women.

The premier welcomed the members of the deputation as representatives of "an association which dissociated itself from the criminal methods of those who have done so much to retard the cause of women."

Mr. Asquith argued that if every woman over twenty-one years of age possessed the vote they would still find legislative problems regarding women exceedingly difficult of solution in the same way as the men had found them. He agreed with the deputation that if the franchise were given to women it should be granted on the same terms as it was given to men.

The premier explained that while it had become necessary to suppress the organized violence of militant suffragettes the government had no desire to interfere with free speech or the proper organization of opinion.

In conclusion Mr. Asquith promised consideration of the women's representations and said he would present to Reginald McKenna, the home secretary, the deputation's request for the unconditional release of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst.

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION ENDS ANNUAL SESSION

Convention at Tybee One of Largest and Most Successful Ever Held

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TYBEE, Ga., June 20.—The thirty-first annual convention of the Georgia Bar association drew to a close this afternoon after one of the most important and largely attended meetings in its history. The election of officers, those nominated and published yesterday afternoon; the address of R. D. Meater, of Brunswick, and a symposium on the circuit rider of law were the principal topics for discussion. Memorials to departed members of the association were adopted.

One of the most important features of the entire meeting was the report of Hamilton Douglas, dean of the Atlanta Law school, on legal education and admission to the bar, and some of the comments on the report by members of the bar. Secretary A. O. Park, of Macon, was taken ill this morning, and the retiring president, Robert C. Alston, had to act for him.

The new president, Sam S. Bennett, of Albany, seemed to be the popular choice for the position of president. He stated today that within the next few days he would name his committee on legislation and urge them to bring about some adequate revision of the law at the next meeting of the general assembly.

"I am keenly appreciative of the honor of the association, given me at a time when so much is asked in the shape of legislation and revision of the statutes, I feel that my task will be a difficult one. I will leave nothing undone to make a satisfactory report at the next meeting," President Bennett said.

MILL WATCHMAN FEARS DISMISSED EMPLOYES

J. T. Netherland Swears Out Warrants for Tom Rich and Claude Jones

Fearing an attack from two dismissed workers of the Exposition Cotton Mills, J. T. Netherland, night watchman for the buildings at the end of Marietta street, swore out warrants in Judge T. O. Hathcock's court, Friday afternoon, charging them with assault. F. H. Netherland, 95 Main street, the watchman's son, is urging the city police and detectives to arrest the men.

According to young Netherland, his father, J. T. Netherland, fifty-five years old, 5 Coral street, told Tom Rich, one of the dismissed employes, to stop smoking inside of the gates Monday afternoon.

Rich, says Netherland and Claude Jones, the other worker for whom the warrant has been issued, were discharged some weks ago. Rich came in and somked, against the rules, deliberately to cause trouble, says Netherland.

The watchman told Rich to stop; Rich answered, it is alleged, with a volley of curses. The watchman reported the matter to the police, but they did not find Rich when officers came out to arrest him.

Young Netherland says Rich then threatened to "get" his father if it took him ten years. Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, when the mill closed, Paul Netherland, a brother, was leaving the gates when he saw Rich and Jones waiting there. Netherland says they were waiting for his father.

They are alleged to have hurled two bricks at Paul Netherland, who dodged. Then, state witnesses, Netherland was stabbed twice in the side by them. He was carried to the Grady. Warrants charging Rich and Jones with assault were sworn out by J. T. Netherland, and the police notified again.

F. H. Netherland says the police have come out several times, but have never found the men, who, he says, are living in the vicinity of the mills.

ANGELES OUSTED BY CARRANZA; IS NAMED PRESIDENT BY VILLA

War Secretary Is Declared Provisional Ruler of Mexico Following His Discharge From the Cabinet

VILLA PREPARES NOTE TO AMERICAN PEOPLE

Sensation Is Created at Saltillo by News of Removal of Angeles From His Post—Huerta's Agents Are Notified

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 20.—The Mexican delegation here received a telegram today from the consul of their government at El Paso, Tex., that General Villa had issued a statement addressed to the American people saying that he had proclaimed General Angeles as provisional president of Mexico.

The consul added that, according to intercepted private messages at Juarez, reports of an amicable adjustment of the differences between Carranza and Villa were not true. He also said word had reached him that Carranza was quietly sending a force of 2,000 men into the state of Sonora with the intention of deposing Governor Maytorena, with wnom Carranza was reported to have had differences.

The following dispatch, received from Saltillo, Mex., by way of Laredo, Tex., tends to confirm the report of General Villa's action:

General Felipe Angeles acting secretary of war of the constitutionalist cabinet, was deposed from that position today by order of General Carranza for disobedience of orders.

No further details of the action, which caused a sensation here, were made public, beyond a statement that Angeles had received certain orders from General Carranza and failed to carry them out.

General Angeles is general of artillery in Villa's army and a strong Villa partisan. His removal from the cabinet reduces him to the rank of general. He is a graduate of Chapultepec military academy and has played a prominent part in Villa's campaigns.

Word was received today from Oriztlan, Hidalgo, that twenty chiefs had met in that place and agreed upon a campaign in the central Mexican states. They sent their respects to General Carranza and asked for instructions.

It was stated that 30,000 men under General Gonzales are being mobilized for the campaign and that it will succeed if two detachments had left already for San Luis Potosi.

It was reported that General Manuel Chao, former governor of Chihuahua, who somewhile replaced Pancho Villa, had been executed on Villa's orders.

Minister Naon Confident Mediation Will Succeed

(By Associated Press.)

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 20.—"I was never more confident than I am today of the ultimate success of mediation," said Dr. Romulo S. Naon, minister from Argentina, when he arrived here at 12:30 o'clock today after conferences in Washington with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan.

Minister Naon predicted that negotiations would be continued at least another week.

"I am confident," Minister Naon added, "and optimistic, which I always have been. While I regard the difficulties which have been encountered as serious, there are always difficulties in mediation, and it is the duty of those who are always to find a way to overcome them so peace may be accomplished."

The minister took an automobile to a hotel for luncheon prior to returning to Niagara Falls, he said he would consult with his colleagues tonight before making any announcement, and that tomorrow morning he would call a meeting of delegates and mediators until Monday. Dr. Naon declined to say what progress he had made in mind which would break the deadlock in the mediation, but he came away form Washington highly optimistic.

He found President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were anxious for one thing —the pacification of Mexico— and were ready to listen to further compromises or suggestions out of which a solution might be found.

COMMISSION TO DISCUSS STATE PANAMA BUILDING

President of Exposition Wires Gov. Slaton to Urge Work on Georgia Building

Governor Slaton has received a telegram from President C. C. Moore, of the Panama-Pacific exposition urging that the Georgia commission visit San Francisco at an early date to arrange for the construction of the state building. The president suggests that the commission take an architect along to confer with the exposition architects.

Frank Weldon, chairman of the Georgia commission, made application some time ago for a site for the state building and the exposition authorities have wired him that they selected one of the most desirable sites on the grounds, overlooking the bay and the Golden Gate.

A meeting of the commission has been called for 12 o'clock next Wednesday at the office of the state geologist. At that time reports will be made on the progress of the campaign to finance the exhibit.

Several large interests in Atlanta have made tentative agreements to be represented in the motion picture. L. C. Wheeler, representing the commission, has gone to Augusta and Savannah to interest those cities in the pictures.

The members of the commission have under consideration a plan to raise part of the needed fund by selling souvenirs of the Georgia exhibit, and it is likely that the board will offer some free trips to San Francisco to those who sell the greatest number. The proposed souvenir will be sold for $1 each and this will afford an opportunity for every one to contribute to the advertising of Georgia. One state with one-fourth of Georgia's white population has already raised $25,000 by the sale of souvenirs and expects to raise as much more.

The commission has invited 200 towns in Georgia to participate in the motion pictures. Brunswick, Bainbridge and Moultrie promptly replied that they want to be illustrated and it has been suggested that in some towns the school children and all the population that can turn out be assembled at some point and be photographed in a large group along with a bird's eye view of the town or some street scene.

THEATERS

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theatres are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater management.)

The excellent bill at the Forsyth this week has helped to crowd this delightfully cool and comfortable house throughout the week, and for the two remaining performances today, capacity audiences will gather. The sketch, which headlines the bill is "Wives of the Rich," presented by Claude Gillingham, Miss Edith Lyle and company, and is the biggest success so far this season in that particular style of act. Others that are pleasing features are Genaro and Bailey, in international specialties, Miss Emma Francis and her Arabian Bays, in song, dance and tumbling and the Bowman Brothers, blackface comedians.

Annette Kellermann in vaudeville was never the wonderful Kellermaan of the movies. Her protrayal of the mermaiden Annette in "Neptune's Daughter" continues to draw capacity crowds to the Grand theater. She is the talk of the town. Swimming, diving, dancing, fencing, transforming alternatively from mortal to immortal, she is the marvel of the movies. She takes a spectacular part in 200 of the film's big scenes.

MAJOR CALLAWAY URGED FOR STATE LEGISLATURE

Editor The Journal: About three weeks ago The Journal stated there was a probability of Major Frank E. Callaway entering the race for representative from Fulton in the general assembly of Georgia. At the time Major Callaway stated that he had been approached by many friends to make the race, but he had not come to any decision.

Major Callaway would make Fulton an ideal representative, in fact, there are but few men that are so well equipped for the office as he. Being an able lawyer as well as a good all-around business man, puts Mr. Callaway right in the running as one of the very best men to be selected.

There would hardly be any doubt of Mr. Callaway winning should he consent to make the race. His hundreds of friends and admirers in the city and throughout the county would delight in rallying to his support. It is the earnest desire and wish of these loyal friends that he enter the race.

Yours very truly,
FRED SHAEFER.

PAVING OF WHITEHALL TO START ON MONDAY

City Construction Department Says It Will Begin on That Day Without Fail

Nym Hurt, assistant chief of the city construction department, stated Saturday that the paving of Whitehall street between Mitchell and Brotherton streets, will begin Monday morning without fail.

"We have been delayed by first one thing and then another," said Mr. Hurt. "The merchants are no more anxious for us to start than we are. We realize that the street is a main thoroughfare of the utmost importance and we have been making every effort to get started. We were first delayed by the failure of the new asphalt mixing plant to be delivered on time, and since the arrival of the plant we have been delayed by the failure of the engineer rent here by the factory to get the plant running as soon as we expected. However, you can say that we will get started Monday morning sure."

The street is to be paved where it was regraded last fall. The regrading was finished in January, and the construction department's plan was to lay the pavement immediately, but unfavorable weather coupled with a rearrangement of the joint program of the city and county caused delay.

About five days will be required to pave the street between the streets above mentioned.

"KING" CONSTIPATION OVERTHROWN

Dethroned by Dodson's Liver Tone. Thousands Who Once Feared Constipation Now Laugh at It.

It's little wonder that constipation has been called the "King of Human Ills."

Not that constipation in itself is so dangerous, or so alarming, but that constipation so surely leads to other more dangerous complications. At least 20 people out of every 100 are shackled at some time or other by the constipation's "Reign of Terror."

But thank goodness thousands have found a safe-and-pleasant way to cure constipation. And it's not by calomel-izing either, because calomel is anything but safe. It's by taking Dodson's Liver Tone, the harmless vegetable liver regulator recommended and guaranteed by your druggist, who will refund purchase price if you're not satisfied.

Dodson's Liver Tone is fast displacing the use of dangerous calomel. This is because Dodson's Liver Tone accomplishes exactly the same results as does calomel, but without the dreadful and disagreeable after-effects which often follow the use of calomel.

Dodson's Liver Tone should be in every home in the land. Get a bottle (50c) today. It means good-bye to dulled brains, bilious headaches, "furred" tongues and a score or more of complaints which arise from constipation and a sluggish liver.—(Advt.)

U. S. MARSHALS SEIZE 170 CARBOYS OF WATER

Claim Mineral Water Company Is Violating Federal Law in Sale of Water

For alleged disregard of a federal statute prohibiting the sale of waters or medicines under labels claiming for them curative properties they do not possess, United States deputy marshals seized, Friday afternoon, 170 carboys of Bo-go-ha-ma water (said to be Indian language for "water of life") from the Atlanta Mineral Water company, 191 Edgewood avenue, local distributors for the Colburn-Morgan company, limited owners of Stafford Mineral Springs, Cowsburg Miss.

The government officers left the carboys in the custody of the local company obtaining its receipt. The water cannot be sold, therefore, unless one of the other of the interested concerns brings proceedings in United States court to establish their non-violation of the law and their right to sell it.

Pure food and drug inspectors of the government based the seizure on the contention that the carboys are labeled with claims that their contents will cure kidney diseases and several other ailments. This, say the inspectors, violates the law.

WOMAN WHOSE HOUSE BURNS LAUDS FIREMEN

Mrs. Hudson Thankful Her Children Are Saved—Tells of Work of Firefighters

Standing in the charred room from which she rescued her four little children, with the roof of her home burnt open to the sky and the furniture ground her blackened and water-soaked, Mrs. M. M. Hudson, of 83 Ontorla avenue, declared Saturday morning that she was a "fortunate woman."

"Why," she said, "I'm so happy because I got my children out in time, that I don't seem to mind this at all. If we were lucky to wake up in time and still more lucky to save all of our home but the roof. You could have seen those firemen! I never knew there were such brave men before. They had battled with a three-alarm fire all night and when they reached this locality they were completely blinded. But they worked like Trojans and it's owing mostly to them that we have got our home all today."

The broke out in the Hudson home at 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Mrs. Hudson was asleep with her two-year-old son, Lasley, on a porch leading out from the second story. On another porch on the same floor were her three little daughters, Louise, aged 14; Dorothy, aged 10; Helen, aged 12.

The fire started from defective wiring in the ceiling of the girls' sleeping porch. Mrs. Hudson first awakened to hear the flames crackling on the other side of the house.

Clasping her little boy in her arms, she woke the three girls and all four of them ran downstairs to safety. Neighbors gave the alarm and the fire-men made a record run to the scene.

Several lengths of garden hose played a rain on the fire, but the pressure was too light. Ontario avenue is far out East Lake hill and even the alarm-fire hose did not exert enough pressure to stop the flames at first. It was only by a hard battle that the fire was gotten under control.

The roof of the Hudson home was burnt entirely away and the second floor was badly damaged. The first floor was not touched at all by the fire. The loss will amount to several thousand dollars.

VERNER'S RESTAURANT IS DAMAGED BY FLAMES

Ladies' Dining Room Burns, With Loss Estimated at $5,000

Fire destroyed the ladies' dining room of Verner's barbecue restaurant, 2 South Broad street, at 1 o'clock Saturday morning. The loss, estimated at $5,000, is covered by insurance.

The interior of the dining room was burned. The main room of the restaurant, adjoining, though not touched by fire, was damaged considerably by water. The restaurant was forced to suspend operations until repairs can be made.

Slight damage was also done to the Child's hotel, adjoining. Several windows were broken by the heat of the flames and some rooms were damaged by smoke.

Lewis Chouroulis, night clerk, saw the flames near door and turned in the alarm.

Many men and women, scantily clad, ran out of the hotel into the streets when the smoke poured into their rooms.

SHRINERS SEND GIFT TO HOSTS IN ATLANTA

Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm Turner Get Loving Cup From Aladdin Temple's Band

Another gift from the Shriners is now going back to Atlantians with appreciation of the nobles who were the city guests last month.

Dr. Malcolm E. Turner, of Yaarab temple, and Mrs. Turner, are the recipients of this latest gift—a silver loving cup from the band of Aladdin temple, Columbus, Ohio. With it came a letter recalling the memories that Dr. and Mrs. Turner helped to make pleasant by a delightful luncheon served in the Aladdin band at their home. Dr. Turner was a member of the general reception committee, and through his work in that capacity he was brought in close touch with the Aladdin visitors, devoting most of his attention to their comfort and pleasure.

The strikers will parade Saturday afternoon through the principal streets in the business center of the city, and Sunday afternoon will hold a mass meeting at Piedmont park. Charles A. Miles, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Mrs. Sarah Conboy and Miss Killeker will speak.

ATLANTA PAYS HANDSOME TRIBUTE TO HEAD OF YAARAB SHRINERS

Atlanta's gift to Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab temple—a gold cup, gold plate, and Shrine pin of diamonds, jasper and tiger claws.

"My fondest ambition, to introduce the Shriners and Atlanta, has been achieved," said Mr. Adair, "I hope to repeat the meeting in 1917."

Forrest Adair Receives Gift of Diamond Pin and Gold Loving Cup

Atlanta's tribute to Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab temple and "first Shriner" of the town, was given to him Friday evening at his home in Druid Hills—just handed to him in the presence of his family without form or ceremony, with a nice little speech of presentation by Charles C. McGehee, Jr. Thus was dedicated the high appreciation in Atlanta's memory of the recent Shrine meeting, of the men who made it the success it was, and of their leader, Mr. Adair.

What was the gift? That had been kept a great secret until Friday evening, lest Mr. Adair learn in advance what was to be given to him. Any other man in Atlanta might have known. It was a Shrine pin of exquisite workmanship and magnificent detail of diamonds, jasper, tiger claws and gold; this attached to a loving cup of beaten gold, standing some sixteen inches high, and the cup standing upon a gold plate. The intrinsic value of these was equivalent to the total of Atlanta's subscriptions. Their sentimental value was immeasurable by dollar marks and figures. That was suggested merely by the inscriptions.

GIFT ON DISPLAY.

The gift will be placed on display Saturday or Sunday in the window of Charles W. Crankshaw, the jeweler who fashioned it, on the Whitehall viaduct. There it will remain several days for all Atlanta to see.

The presentation was prearranged to the extent of insuring Mr. Adair's presence at home Friday evening. That was done through members of his family. Nothing more was prepared. Members of the committee accompanied their chairman, Mr. McGehee, who originated the suggestion, and Mr. McGehee was spokesman for all whose names are on the subscription list. The list itself was printed in The Journal, through which paper the contributions were invited from the people. It has been reproduced in permanent form for Mr. Adair's information.

The simplest presentation was preferred by the committee, in the belief that it would represent more fitly the sincere appreciation which prompted the gift. Suggestions of a mass meeting for the purpose of a presentation at Five Points, and of other plans, were eliminated in favor of this.

Chairman McGehee told Mr. Adair the presentation was "the last scene of the first act of a most wonderful civic drama." Subsequent acts will be written in the increased growth and prosperity that must accrue to Atlanta, said he, from the entertainment of the Shrine in May.

Atlanta has been fortunate in selecting leaders for her many wonderful achievements, said he. Every great enterprise depends on the character of its leading spirit. From the first exposition in 1881 until now Atlanta has not lacked this exalted leadership in any case.

"In the entertainment of the Shrine we rose to our supreme moment of civic glory and achievement, and tonight Atlanta pays tribute to you, the splendid leader who made it possible," he continued.

"First in securing and afterward in caring for the Shrine, you won the unqualified approval of your fellow citizens. For the time being I hold their power of attorney to express their profound appreciation for what you have done. In token of that, I tender you these beautiful pieces of gold. Their purity is symbolic of the motives that have inspired you.

"Yaarab temple has elected you as its illustrious potentate. The citizens of Atlanta have elected you imperial potentate in the shrine of their hearts."

Mr. Adair's acknowledgement was a reiteration of his protest that not he but others made the Shrine meeting a glorious success. He lauded those who directed the various phases of the great work and said that to them Atlanta's thanks are due. He said the fondest ambition of his life for years past has been to bring together the Shriners and Atlanta, the two objects of his most cherished regard after that which he gives his family.

That the introduction had been so pleasant to both, said he, was sufficient reward. Furthermore it gave him incentive, said he, to encourage their mutual regard; and on that he had begun work already to win the Shriners for Atlanta again in 1917, assured the city would be delighted to play hostess once more.

He said the Shriners anticipated something they could not comprehend—the realization of what they had heard vaguely as "the Atlanta spirit," an experience with the southern hospitality of which they had heard. That anticipation was what drew so many of them, he declared.

And in letters, newspaper clippings by the tens of thousands, and other evidence, he had proof that they realized all they expected and more. Atlanta's praises are on the lips of all Shriners today, said he. He tried to put in words his acknowledgment of Atlanta's tribute to him as the leader of that success, but cut short with the promise that he will practice it instead.

All the members of Mr. Adair's immediate family witnessed the presentation. The committee members were Mr. McGehee, Colonel R. J. Lowry, Captain J. W. English, Ernest Woodruff, John E. Murphey, Robert F. Maddox, Colonel F. J. Paxon, Lowry Arnold, Ivan E. Allen, Reuben R. Arnold and Thomas B. Paine.

INSCRIPTIONS ON GIFTS.

Following were the inscriptions:

On the cup—"Forrest Adair, Citizen and Shriner." on its reverse. "Presented by the Citizens of Atlanta in Order That His Service in Their Behalf May Be Known to Posterity."

On the plate—"Commemorating Loyalty, Zeal, Ability—Three Qualities With Which Forrest Adair Made Possible the Success of the Convention of the Imperial Council, A. A. O. N. M. S., Atlanta, May 12-13, 1914."

On the pin— "Forrest Adair, Illustrious Potentate, Yaarab Temple. From the Citizens of Atlanta, May, 1914."

Movement to Honor Noble Proved Exceptionally Popular

The movement to give some form to Atlanta's outspoken delight with the Shriners' meeting and all who made it possible was started on Thursday, May 14, even before many of the visiting caravans had loaded their camels for the long ride home. No better plan appeared than the spontaneous idea to make Forrest Adair, leader of the workers, the recipient of a gift bought by the whole city—by non-Shriners as well as Shriners, by unaffiliated citizens as well as secret order men, by women as well as men; and even children were to contribute, as was proved later.

Before that time a gift to Mr. Adair had been suggested. The originator, Mr. McGehee, spoke of the idea to a friend in advance of Shrine week. While Atlanta yet was glowing with the playtime of Shrine week, Mr. McGehee renewed the suggestion; it was indorsed by ten citizens (his fellow committee members of Friday evening), and they submitted it to The Journal. The Journal cut loose a broadside, Atlanta acclaimed the salute, and the fund was complete almost before the first echoes had died away. Starting Tuesday afternoon, it was closed the following Monday at 1 o'clock with a long list of subscribers. The maximum limit of subscriptions had been set at $10. Any amount under that was welcome.

With the contributions came many letters, a number of telegrams, and a multitude of verbal expressions, telling of the cordiality that prompted them. The idea sounded a responsive chord in the hearts of very many people.

After the fund was closed the difficulty lay in keeping it closed. Late comers pried it open to put their contributions in. Citizens who had been away from town came back and demanded a share in the giving. Shriners at a distance read of it in The Journal and sent their gifts.

In many ways the movement was one of the most remarkable and popular Atlanta has known.

$5,000 DAY'S KEYNOTE IN GREATER TECH CAMPAIGN

Bulletin Sent Out to Alumni Urges All to Use Best Endeavors

"Five thousand dollars today" is the keynote of the bulletin sent out to 400 alumni Tech, and workers in the Greater Tech campaign, from the headquarters.

"Don't be afraid to put your heart and soul into the work," says the bulletin. "You will have the approval and appreciation of the best men in Georgia. You will be glad to say that you had a good share in the campaign for Greater Tech."

The luncheon meeting at the Piedmont was a summation of the work of the entire week. It is the aim and purpose of the workers to be able to report Sunday morning that half of the sum to be raised has already been secured.

Some of th advantages Atlanta gains by having the Georgia School of Technology in the city, and the increased advantages of Georgia Tech were pointed out by Dr. Nebit, dean of the night school, in the work which that institution is doing for the boys and men of Atlanta.

The laboratories and equipment of the Georgia School of Technology were given free to the night school, and there is no tuition charged for students. The courses are given free to the boys of Atlanta.

With the equipment which would be added with the Greater Tech the scope of the work done in the night school could be greatly widened, and its value to the community correspondingly increased."

Atlanta friends of Henry Powers Elliott will be gratified to learn of his graduation this spring from Princeton university, where he attained high honors, especially in dramatic work.

Mr. Elliott is well known here. He is the grandson of Mrs. Henry Powers, of Atlanta, and is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High school. After leaving High school Mr. Elliott spent a year at Lawrenceville before entering Princeton.

Recently Mr. Elliott starred as leading lady in "The Pursuit of Priscilla," the play produced this spring by the Princeton Triangle club, of which he is president. The play was written by him in collaboration with Robert Strain and was produced in several large eastern cities. Mr. Elliott's work in the female impersonation role is said to have been remarkable.

Next fall Mr. Elliott will return from Europe, where he spends the summer, to enter business here.

WORK TO BEGIN SOON ON STEWART AVENUE

The county forces will begin work on Stewart avenue just as soon as the Gordon street work is completed, according to the statement of W. T. Winn, member of the public works committee of the board of county commissioners.

With fair weather continuing, the Gordon street job should be completed by the middle of next week, and the forces will go from there to the Stewart avenue work, Mr. Winn states.

Mr. Winn explained the status of the work following complaints from property owners. When the year's program was fixed many months ago, Stewart avenue was placed on the list to follow Gordon street, and it will not lose its place on the program, Mr. Winn declares.

The city has already expended $2,500 for the purchase of paving material, which will be used on the Stewart avenue job.

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE
How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Floods of Paris.

The terrific rain storm that broke upon Paris this week is remindful, in its havoc, of the overflow of the Seine a few years ago. Streets have been rent with chasms, buildings engulfed, much property destroyed, and a number of lives lost. That such a disaster should be possible in so rich and splendid a city is ascribed by an American observer to the fact that Paris "is a compromise between modern and discarded methods." Its sewer system, we are told, has broken down, and remodelling is loudly called for.

"The main sewers are from eight to twenty feet in diameter—so large that ordinary sewage runs in a groove at the bottom. But it does not run into the Seine; it is pumped under and over the river to sewage farms on the south side. An exceptional storm can overtax the pumping works which force it across the river, flood the sewers, put out of commission the gas and electric conduits along their side walls, and burst them open from within by pressure from the higher levels."

The city, moreover, is built upon ground, much of which has been tunneled and quarried and changed century after century to serve the needs or tastes of successive generations. The result is that "the substructures in the older parts of the city frequently rest upon ancient lower vaults instead of solid soil." It is not surprising, then, that an uncommonly severe and steady rain storm, pouring its floods into the sewers and exerting great pressure from above, should work tremendous damage.

It is believed that one outcome of the present trouble will be the installation of a new sewer system. "Just when the money for so vast an undertaking will be forthcoming," says a correspondent, "it is impossible to forecast; but already the agitation has begun, and the city which spent hundreds of millions to beautify itself by ripping down thousands of houses to construct the Boulevard Haussman will not stop at a matter of expense."

The perplexity facing the leaders of the Progressive party consists of explaining what the party is for.

They are investigating the most recent steamship disaster just as if that would prevent future ones.

The first week of vacation would make many a child happy if it didn't have the constant dread of the last week.

The Knot in Mediation.

The mediation conference is now at the most difficult and delicate stage of its proceedings.

It was comparatively easy to reach a basis of settlement between the United States and the Huerta regime. The dictator's agreement to retire was the key to that particular problem.

But the settlement of Mexico's internal affairs is a more complex and arduous task.

Huerta must be replaced by a provisional government that will command the respect of all factions, a government strong enough to hold the country together until an election can be held.

The United States insists the head of this government should certainly not be anyone who has been identified with the Huerta regime; it insists further, according to the news reports, that a Constitutionalist of proved character and ability would be the logical man to head a provisional government.

The Mexican representatives at Niagara Falls have thus far dissented from this plan. If they hold to their objections, and the United States remains equally firm, the conference will fail in one of its main purposes, unless the South American mediators can devise an acceptable way out of the differences.

Minister Naon, representing Argentina, declares there is still hope for the success of the conference, and Washington officials are still optimistic.

It was inevitable that sooner or later, the conference would encounter serious difficulties. But its originating purpose was to overcome just such difficulties.

It may be that the effort of constructive diplomacy will fail, but it has not yet turned its last stroke.

Some of the people who complain of a business depression probably suffer from their own chronic condition.

What will become of the old-time rolling gait of the American tar after Secretary Daniels' dry order goes into effect?

The small nations of Europe have planned a union, probably with the idea of making better terms with the European banks which lend them money.

Town and Country, Shoulder to Shoulder.

The co-operative spirit that is fast developing between town and country, business and agriculture, is interestingly witnessed in the farm-improvement work of the Arkansas Bankers Association. For years the banks of Arkansas have offered liberal prizes to the boys' corn and cotton clubs and the girls canning clubs. By this means scores of country youths win a college education; and last year, we are told, one hundred and fifty boys attended a cotton school at Little Rock, "all the expenses being paid by banks, corporations and business firms."

"Nothing contributes so much to property as good crops," remarks the Courier-Journal, "and the banks, no less than other lines of business are seriously affected by agricultural depression." The fact is, bankers, merchants, manufacturers and railroads can make no surer investment than in contributing to the development of farm interests. Since the Arkansas banks began their campaign of encouragement and education, the average acre yield of corn in that State has increased forty per cent. The enrichment thus brought to every field of business has repaid a million times over whatever funds the banks devoted to rural causes.

It is gratifying to know that in Georgia the relationships between town and country are becoming more and more helpful, and that business men are recognizing the vast importance of agricultural progress. The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has long had a special committee on agriculture, and in divers ways has aided in the upbuilding of rural interests. It was this organization that inaugurated the annual corn shows which have inspired the boy farmers of Georgia to new energy and ideals.

In like manner the State Chamber of Commerce is binding the cities and the country districts with ties of generous co-operation. The State Chamber, indeed, was founded largely on the idea that Georgia could not attain its due growth and prosperity unless the forces of commerce and industry and agriculture worked shoulder to shoulder for their common good. The membership of this organization includes hundreds of farmers. Its plans and efforts are directed as freely to the development of rural as of urban welfare. It stands for better highways, better schools and better protection for the health of country counties as well as for an extension of manufactures and trade.

In this trend of affairs there is a world of significance and cheer. Time was when the interests of town and country were regarded as distinct, if not almost conflicting. Among city folk there was often ignorance of country folk, and among the latter a certain prejudice against city dwellers. Between these groups, yawned a strange gulf of indifference or misunderstanding. What a change is coming to pass! The countryman is no longer a stranger in the city, but a frequent and welcome visitor. The city man, if he is at all representative of progressive business ideas, is no longer indifferent to rural conditions. He is keenly concerned over what is going on in the faraway fields—the crops that have been planted, the methods that are employed, the harvests that are ripening, the roads and churches and schools of the country districts.

There is a steady deepening, too, of the social as well as the practical relationships between city and country. At the State corn shows held in Atlanta each autumn, hundreds of farmer lads are entertained in our homes. They are not merely delegates but cordially welcomed guests. This goodly custom is bound to breed a richness of friendship that will mean a vast deal to the higher progress of the commonwealth. There has always been a sense of social solidarity among Georgia folk, sprung as they are from the same stock and reared upon the same traditions. Most of us have our country cousins, if not country brothers and sisters, so that there has never been that barrier between city and farm which exists in some other States. But there has undoubtedly been, until recent years, a lack of due co-operation between urban and rural forces. The fact that this co-operation is now developing, that merchants and bankers, manufacturers and railroads are aiding directly and liberally in farm progress is one of the brightest omens there could be of Georgia's future advancement.

The early bird gets the worm, but not by staying out all night.

We feel sorry for the average man who gets what he deserves.

King George must admit by now that war with the suffragettes is hell.

Editorial Echoes.

The man who doesn't care for fresh air, the sea, the rolling hills, green valleys and streams or the perfumes of summer woods, who can find no inspiration in the broad amphitheater of nature, has a kink in his mental make-up. If you don't know how to loaf, you can't know how to labor. There is no rest like that which is earned after work well done, and there is no work better done than that which is enjoyed after a little idleness.—Topeka State Journal.

Piccadilly in London was so called from Piccadilla Hall, the chief depot of a certain sort of lace much in vogue during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The lace was called Picadilly lace from its little spear points, a diminutive of "tica," a pike or spear. In the reign of James I the high ruff was called a piccadilly though divested of its lace edging. "Glossographia," published in 1681, states that "Piccadilly was named from Higgins' famous ordinary near St. James', called Higgins' Piccadilly, because he made his money by selling piccadillies." Another authority, Isaac Taylor, writes: "Piccadilly so called from Piccadilla Hall, a shop for the sale of Piccadillas, the fashionable peaked or turnover collars."—Manchester Courier.

THE ENGLISH DERBY

BY HERBERT COREY.

LONDON.—One starts to see the Derby believing that he is merely going to see a horse race. And one finds that he has run bang up against a bulwark of the British nation, like Magna Charta or the Christmas pantomime. It is a pretty rotten horse race—this being said under reserve, as the English papers have it, and admitting that the best horses in the world are in competition—but it is the greatest spectacle ever witnessed on this or any other globe gathered on the rolling downs to see the Derby run. Those who didn't get to the Derby lined the 15 miles of roads that lead to London when the race was over, cheering those of us who did. A king threw coppers to gypsy children. A queen wore a cloak of ermine, just as they do in the story books.

For a week before Derby day nothing else is talked of in London. Two days before Derby day you observe strange faces in the halls of your hotels and notice red-faced, hearty old chaps greet each other affectionately. One, you learn, comes from Lancashire and perhaps the other from Ethiopero. For forty years they have met in this same hotel during Derby week. The hall porter compliments you by asking deferentially what you know about the Derby. You betray your complete ignorance, and then you learn that every employee of the hotel—from the scullery boy to the housekeeper—has his or her bit down on a favored horse. The head waiter relaxes his strictly British aspect to smile upon you.

"The 'ouse would be glad to put up your 'amper for the Darby," says he.

THE BRITON DOES BATHE.

On Derby day morning you waken to the sound of joyful splashing that echoes through the hotel's halls. I am not one of those who doubt the Briton's every morning bath, but I am prepared to concede that only on ritual occasions is he demonstrative. On Derby day he acts like a canary in its saucer. By 9 o'clock you are on top of the motorbus, waiting for the inevitable late arrival. An hour later you are rolling through the most wonderful leafy lanes in England. Overhead arch elms that may have been saplings when Henry the Eighth first began to get into domestic troubles—everything herabouts dates from Henry's embarrassments—and on either side "for sale" signs are hanging on green hedges. Either the landed aristocracy of Great Britain will be landless soon or else it has gone into the real estate business.

Half a dozen years ago costers' barrows would have been much in evidence. Then the coaster put on his "pearlies" for Derby day, and with his donah by his side wended his faithful course all the way to the downs. The motor car has put an end to this romantic survival. The single family of be-pearlied costers we saw were suspected by soured persons of some connection with the stage. But if donkey carts were comparatively few, 'Arry and 'Arriet were not the least heartsome part of the show. They walked—thousands of them—the fifteen miles from London. And on the return, heartened anon by a refreshing drink of bitter, 'Arry's cap was in the air and a song in his throat most of the way, while the unvocal 'Arriet pulled her wind skirt aside and did coster dancing steps at six miles an hour. And they were always good natured. Not even the fuming dust from thousands of motor cars gave cause for a single angry retort.

WHERE VAGABONDIA BEGINS.

No scene could be more typically British—or more absolutely un-American—than the one presented on Epsom Downs. The night before a swarm of gypsies and hedge-persons, and heaven knows what, of English vagabondia had settled upon the downs. I counted more than 100 gypsy vans, and then gave up from sheer weariness. I had not covered a tenth of the territory. An itinerant parson handed out tracts and took up collections. A score of tipsters, coatless, perspiring, worked valiantly in rings of simple-minded, interested people. Each had thrown his coat upon the ground, and as the half pronged hawk's bill hung and a tambourine with one hand, while he tapped out a dance tune with a single drumstick held in the other. Gypsy women pestered lovers of quiet. A pair of young Cockneys, enjoyably pickled, put their noses together in Weber and Fields fashion and sang:

H'all abo'; h'all abo'; h'all abo' for h'Alabam.

to the great delight of Americans, who threw them pennies. And every one bet in pounds and pence.

No admission is charged to Epsom Downs. But various prices are charged for admission to the small enclosures immediately in front of the grandstand, ranging from a sovereign to six shillings. In the pound admission enclosure the big bookies accepted only sizable bets. In the open field, outside of the fences, one could bet as little as a penny. Four shillings seemed to be the top bet. A shilling was accepted in every book. And the bookmakers were of no different sort than we are accustomed to in the states. Each had his little stand, and a flaring placard in colors.

Quips and Quiddities

A western newspaper man tells of a friend who edited, with more or less success, a paper in an Iowa town. That he was somewhat discouraged by the lack of interest shown in his journal was evidenced by this notice which one afternoon appeared on the editorial page:

"Burglars entered our house last night. To the everlasting shame of the community, for whose welfare we have labored, be it said, they got nothing."—Harper's Magazine.

* * *

Deacon Skinner—Well, our pastor received a call to a church in Oshkosh and says he'll go there.

Deacon Grabber—Huh! That's what comes o' raising his salary last year. He's saved up enough for railroad tickets.

* * *

Chauncey M. Depew, at a Peekskill dinner, was talking about a certain antiquated railroad.

"It's manager," he said, "seemed almost as absurd as the farmer.

"A farmer lived on a lonely place and eventually a railroad was run through the district. There was one train a day and it stopped at the farmer's station on signal.

"The farmer one day set the signal and the train drew up. But he did not climb aboard.

"'Well, get on!' shouted the conductor. 'Get on, can't ye?'

"'Excuse me,' said the farmer, 'I don't want to get on. I only want to say that you are to stop here at this time tomorrow, as my wife is going to town to do some shopping.'"—The Voter.

A boy would persist in saying "I have wrote." The teacher, after many reminders and remonstrances, set him the supposedly curative task of writing the words "have written" 100 times after school hours. Leaving the lad at his task, she forgot all about him and went home. On her troubled return some time later she found that he had effected an informal exit and had left on her desk this note:

"Dear teacher: I have wrote 'I have written' a hundred times, and I have went home."

The Conning Tower

BY FRANKLIN P. ADAMS.

THE CONTRIBS' OPERA.

WITH A TEAR FOR "THE YEOMEN OF THE GUARD," PROMISED THIS SEASON, BUT NOT PRODUCED—THEATRICAL MISDEMEANOR.

A contrib who would woo Tower-fame,
If verse be the means to his aim,
Should study all day
In methodical way
To master the rules of the game.

If he's made the best use of his time,
His stuff he'll carefully rhyme,
That every word
Will be properly heard
And with every other will chime.

He will learn that his finishing touch
May mean little or nothing or much;
But every try
Has a chance to get by,
And it ought to be treated as such.

Then a doubt of its worth is no guide;
Just send it, and let him decide.
What you think will be canned
May be just what will land—
You never can tell till you've tried.

It is merely a matter of skill
Which all may attain if they will.
But alas and alack,
It is only a knack,
And without an idea 'tis nil.

CITY SPORTS FOR SUMMER.

Those who are unable to leave the city in summer should not despair. The metropolis offers many attractions the seashore, lake and mountain resorts fail to put forth. From time to time, or less frequently, as the case may be, this colyum will tell you who must linger in town of some of the jolly games you may while away the warm afternoons or evenings with.

First, there is seat-grabbing on the bus. Any number may play. Go to Washington Square or Broadway and 136th street. Wait for a bus. You will find company. From those who have been waiting longer than you and get on the bus before they do. This gets you a choice of seats and may keep others waiting for the next bus. Women especially. Their place is at home, you know. A good player may be able to jam himself ahead of as many as ten women, especially if they assume he is a gentleman, who would scorn such methods.

Get a front seat, and light a cigarette. The smoke will be enjoyed by all the other passengers, and some of them may not mind it.

A careful reading of the baccalaureate sermons delivered f. o. b. New Haven, Princeton and Morningside Heights leads one to the conclusion that financial success is not everything, that honor and honesty are fine traits and that a good character is a desirable possession.

"In one word," says the Times, "the natives of every class, soldiers and civilians, were imbued with the belief that it would be a matter of comparative ease to rid themselves of their English masters and to recover their independence." Gosh! if it had been two words!

The rural person in the old wheeze who "ain't the man he used to be—nope, never was" has practically nothing on H. S. S. "Business is poorer than I expected," he postcards from Waterbury, Conn., "but, to tell the truth, I didn't think it would be."

The Public Library classifiers have their own subtle method of criticism. "Ade's Fables," frinst, is under Literature, while Tarkington's "Penrod" is under Fiction.

REVISING THE LONG ISLAND'S ENGLISH.

Sir: You remember that sign at the polo game that read something like this: "If passengers will not attempt to crowd on earlier trains there will be seats for all on later trains." How much more forcible it would have been had they conveyed the same idea thusly: "If passengers crowd, or attempt to crowd, on earlier trains, there will not be enough seats to go round on later trains."

Ballade of Nameless Worth

Honor, we say, to whom honor is due!
Wreathe with the chaplet each excellent brow.
Tomorrow may serve for the morrow, 'tis true,
But better it is to attend to it now.
The sage and the hero with fame we endow,
Our statesmen we praise and lament when they die;
So let us discover and honor, somehow,
The heroine fair who invented the pie!

The poet, the priest, and the plutocrat, too,
A measure of praise we all freely allow;
The eager inventor of nuisance new,
The man who does something to uplift the cow—
All these we applaud and to these we kowtow;
We glorify some when we scarcely know why;
One woman we seek that the knee we may bow—
The heroine fair who invented the pie!

How sweet is its comfort for me and for you!
When fed on that dainty we fear not a row;
With courage in crises each breast 'twill imbue—
Oh, who would go back on the pie of his frau!
Pray, have we not given you reasons enow?
Again do we plead with a tear and a sigh,
Go, gather her leaves from the laurel its bough,
The heroine who invented the pie!

L'ENVOI.

Princess! To you fullest honors we vow!
To find you and crown you we'll ne'er cease to try,
Until you are found and we raise a cheer—wow!
The heroine fair who invented pie!

THE BRITISH CRISIS

XL.—THE FUTURE.

BY FREDERIC J. BASKIN.

LONDON.—What of the future? What will be the effect on England and on the British empire of the revolution now impending? For revolution it is, quite regardless of whether it will continue to be a succession of reforms peacefully affected, or whether it will be accomplished by blood.

* * *

It is revolutionary to depose the landed classes from their peculiar privileges in government; it is revolutionary to "mend" or "end" the house of lords; it is revolutionary to abandon the doctrine of laissez faire.

* * *

England has absolute faith that she will triumph over every foe, foreign and domestic, and that her empire is eternal. Even Macaulay, when he wept for the broken arch of London bridge and the ruined dome of St. Paul's, brought a man from New Zealand over the all-red route to be witness of the desolation.

* * *

And yet, although Britain will endure, Britons freely admit that it will be changed. How far this spirit of change shall go is the fundamental question in British affairs today. Every division of politics reflects dissensions that are essentially social, and the purely political problems in which English statesmen so long excelled and delighted have been relegated to the limbo of things forever done.

* * *

In its essence the struggle is between the patricians and the plebians, between the aristocrats and the democrats. A new idea of government is born. It holds that government is not a machine for impressing law and order upon a people, but rather that the government is the instrumentality by which the people rule themselves for their own benefit and in their own interest.

* * *

One must hold these things in mind when discussing the probabilities of the immediate future. There may be no trouble in Ireland, compromises may be effected, Parliament may meet, peace may triumph. The student of history does not forget that in 1829 and again in 1850, the trouble between the north and south of the United States was finally and forever settled, but these "final settlements" were not regarded by either side in 1861.

* * *

Now that John Redmond at last has given his sanction as leader of the Nationalist party to the Nationalist volunteers, following the example of Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, we have in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland three distinct bodies of armed troops. There are the Ulster volunteers, determined to die rather than to accept home rule; there are the Irish volunteers, determined that the home rule they have won after so long a fight shall be a real home rule; and there is the army.

* * *

The Ulster volunteers believe that the army is in sympathy with them, meaning by "the army" its officers. The army officers are aristocratic and the aristocrats of England are opposed to home rule. The Ulstermen believe that their hundred thousand troops are the equal of half a million others, and they have the faith that the army will disobey the orders of the crown rather than attempt to coerce Ulster into accepting government from a Dublin parliament. As the situation grows more disturbed the privates in the army, for some of them notoriously sympathize with the home rulers.

* * *

The Irish Nationalists occupy a position precisely opposite. They believe that 25,000 of them can whip the entire 100,000 Ulstermen. They, too, believe that the army officers will be disloyal when it comes to a fight, but while they distrust the officers, they have an abounding faith in Tommy Atkis. They believe that when the trouble comes Mr. Atkis will promptly shoot his officers in the back of the neck and join the Nationalist forces.

* * *

The army is sorely puzzled. It is a Tory institution, so far as the officers' minds are concerned, and incapable of understanding the folly of the Radical government. They remember that Irish Nationalists cheered Boer victories in South Africa, and they are convinced that the only loyalists in Ireland are themselves. That they should be expected to use their swords to force Ulster out of the United Kingdom is something quite beyond their powers of understanding.

* * *

So much for Ireland. In England, Scotland and Wales the trouble is different only in that it is altogether political without religious or sectional complications. The trouble in England is that if the army refuses to obey the orders of a Radical government simply because the army is Tory and doesn't choose to regard the present government as loyal, then the Labor men will take a hand.

* * *

Within the last two weeks a hard and fast agreement has been made by the three largest unions in England, representing the dock workers, the railway workers and the coal miners. If the army should refuse to put down a rebellion in Ulster, these three unions would at once declare a general strike that would paralyze transportation and industry in England, and bring London to the verge of starvation within a week.

* * *

Over against these elements of danger one must set the marvelous British capacity for compromise. Not even a Chinese statesman will do more to "save his face" than an Englishman, but granting that there is no loss of dignity, the Englishman prefers a peaceful settlement to a fight. The only trouble is that many questions are so deep that compromises only plaster over wounds, not healing them.

* * *

In all probability the struggle will be long. Ten years or twenty will be required for the fusion of the constitution and its remolding into a more democratic form. The oligarchic governing class must yield at the end, and it is largely with this class whether they will recognize the inevitable and sacrifice their privileges to save the country, or whether they will attempt to hold what they have and force a revolution of blood and fire.

* * *

As for Ireland, the future brightens. No matter if there is a war, it can have but one end, and that the triumph of the new Dublin parliament. Ireland will be a nation with a free constitution, a nation indeed, but still a nation even as Canada or Australia. The breaking of seven centuries of alien domination unquestionably will result in a new birth of hope and power that will cause Erin to regain its lost and fabled front rank among the nations of Europe.

* * *

What the future holds for Britain affects of course the whole wide world. The greatest empire among men lives not to itself alone. When the French revolution changed forever the current of political and social affairs in Europe, England resisted, and so slowly, slowly during the century after did it adapt the changes that had their birth in the last quarter of the eighteenth century. Now she is paying the price of what was then her prudent conservatism. If she can settle her problem peacefully, the whole world should rejoice, for other countries have difficult problems ahead and no one believes they should be settled by force.

* * *

On the other hand, the danger is that if the conflagration should break out in staid and conservative Britain, nothing could prevent explosions from the great body of unrest and discontent to be found among the working class of nearly all European countries.

* * *

Despite the dangers, which may not be blinked, one feels instinctively that somehow British statesmanship will find a way out, and that which now seems to be a threat of terrible disaster will in the end prove but a tempest in a teapot.

MILLIONS TO BE SPENT IN CHURCH BUILDINGS

Reports Indicate Great Activity in Construction—Outlay to Approximate $40,000,000

NEW YORK, June 20.—Reports now fully complete indicate that there will go into new churches, and into buildings intended to advance the Christian cause in America, between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 this summer and fall. Delays in construction operations may carry some of this outlay over into next winter, perhaps beyond the end of the year, but such sums are offset by those expended since the beginning of 1914, so that the church erection outlay in the United States for the year will reach about $40,000,000.

This sum is $5,000,000 above the normal indicating that causes affecting business in general, and hurting gifts to missions and to charities, do not prevail against the carrying forward of new projects. The largest outlays along these lines are in New York and New England for the east, in California because of new structures going up for use at the Panama exposition, and in the southwest. The middle west has been building churches in considerable numbers for the last ten years, but this year slacks up to some extent.

The American people put into Christian work of all forms $400,000,000 a year. This amount grows steadily, having nearly doubled in the last fifteen years. Some say people do not go to church as they once did. However that may be, they give money in large sums, and seem not to have been affected in so doing by financial stringency in other lines. Of the total named $45,000,000 a year goes to so-called home missions, a very broad term; $35,000,000 into new structures and enrichments; $18,000,000 into foreign missions; and the balance into maintenance. Apart from these, Christian people give large sums to charities, and to public relief of all kinds. Indeed, while Christians number only about a third of the population they give $3 of every $4 that goes to charities, education, hospitals, and it is the Christian people that respond with two-thirds of the special emergency calls for relief of sufferers from famine, earthquake and flood disasters.

Religious bodies that are contributing largest sums to the new building projects this summer are the Roman Catholic, which is advancing in many cities among the foreign born especially, and in the south; Episcopal which is erecting several costly cathedrals; Lutheran, who in most of its synods is gathering in foreign born for the first time into housed congregations; Methodists, Disciples and United Brethren, which have building campaigns on in several states; and education which, in Presbyterian and some other bodies, is raising large sums to send to Christian training work abroad. The sum named does not cover vast sums going into structures for colleges once identified with Christian bodies but now wholly cut off from them.

The single district that is undergoing the most radical changes, and giving Christian churches the hardest propositions, is Manhattan borough, New York City. Here population changes, and the demand for land for hotels, theaters, office buildings and loft buildings, are greater than any part of any city ever before went through. Yet in Manhattan alone, exclusive of growing suburbs of New York, not less than $6,000,000 will go into edifices to be used exclusively for Christian work during the summer building season now here, while as much as $10,000,000 is covered in plans that are already drawn. A very small proportion of these sums are for Brooklyn and the Bronx. Manhattan still leads all boroughs, indeed all other cities.

In many cities the form of churches is changing, and no year will see so great change as the present. Structures that resemble loft buildings or apartments, with roof gardens and club features like modern hotels, are taking the place of the conventional churches, certainly of those with tall steeples and towers. Reports from every part of the country indicate that the nearly $40,000,000 now involved in plans will bring into existence edifices that are as up to the minute in church design as other sums to go into commercial or residential buildings.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT EPWORTH CONFERENCE

Opening Session at Waycross Thursday—Interesting Program Carried Out

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 20.—Today the thirteenth annual conference of the South Georgia Epworth league got down to real business, organizing this morning after the welcoming addresses had been delivered. It is expected that the conference will be one of the busiest and most important held in years.

The attendance is much larger than was anticipated, practically all delegates reaching Waycross last night.

This morning the opening session was preceded by a song service, led by Rev. John Sharpe. Rev. J. H. Scruggs, pastor of the First Methodist church, delivered the invocation, followed by the address of welcome which was by Rev. Arthur Robinson. C. L. Shephard, of Fort Valley, responded to the welcoming address on behalf of the visitors. The first business session of the conference was next in order, the conference organizing with the roll call of chapters, appointment of committees and reports of officers.

Dr. F. S. Parker, of Nashville, Tenn., conducted the voluntary Bible study, and the morning sermon, which came after a brief intermission, was delivered by Rev. W. H. Budd, of Valdosta. At 1 o'clock the local entertainment committee served a luncheon for all visitors at the Sunday school rooms of the church. The afternoon session was preceded by a thirty-minute song service. Institute work was the first thing on the program, conducted by Rev. A. W. Rees, first vice president of the conference, and Prof. Wilbur Colvin, president of the North Georgia Epworth league conference. Institue work, round table on second department, was next conducted by Miss Alice Burden, second vice president of the conference, and Prof. Colvin. A discussion on the subject of "Social Service and Recreation" by the Central office team, concluded the afternon session. The evening session was given over to a song service and address by Dr. F. S. Parker.

Tomorrow morning the vice presidents, junior superintendents, Era agents and district secretaries will be submitted. The morning address will be delivered by Dr. Gross Alexander, of Nashville.

AMERICUS CONFERENCE HELD DURING THE WEEK

RICHLAND, Ga., June 20.—The opening session of the Americus District conference met in the Methodist church this week, Rev. T. D. Ellis, of Dawson, presiding elder of the district, in the chair.

Rev. R. E. Bailey, of Shellman, was elected secretary. Homes were provided for all the preachers and delegates.

Dr. Ellis put on a chart a statistical report of all the charges.

There were three sermons each day and business sessions between times.

Wednesday Mr. W. B. Stubbs, of Savannah, delivered two addresses on laymen's activity.

Dr. C. R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan college, was present as a visitor.

Rev. F. L. Stokes preached the opening sermon and Rev. W. P. Blevin preached also during the week.

At the noon session Tuesday committees were appointed and put to work, and the local preachers' characters were passed and their licenses renewed, with one or two exceptions.

Rev. J. A. Smith, agent of the orphans' home, Rev. O. F. Cook, of Thomasville, were present and all the preachers of the Americus district except J. M. Rustin and many local preachers and lay delegates were present.

DR. H. M. DUBOSE RETURNS FROM WAYCROSS MEETING

Dr. H. M. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist church, who has returned from a trip to Waycross where he addressed the South Georgia Epworth League Conference, will speak Sunday morning on the subject: "The Beatitude of Doing." At the evening hour his subject will be: "Sowing and Reaping," or Atlanta's Crop of Wild Oats." Should weather condition prove favorable the evening service will be held upon the lawn which has been fitted up for that purpose.

Rev. L. E. Barton Back

Rev. L. E. Barton, who has returned from Greenville, where he conducted services will preach Sunday morning and night at the Jackson Hill church.

The Problem of the Unemployed

To quote the report of the Social Service commission of the Episcopal church in Long Island, the special industrial problem which the commission has brought to the mind of the church is that of unemployment. The commission said in its report: "We would ask the ministers and the people of the diocese to study this serious and complicated problem." "The Industrial Situation," by Prof. Carlton, of Albion college, is recommended for study. In it are presented facts which show that the extent of unemployment in the United States is alarming; that the labor market is no well organized, the present employment bureaus being inefficient agencies for the sale of labor power, that the backward worker furnishes the American people with a perplexing problem, that irregular employment is demoralizing, and that an increasing number of people are not simply unemployed but are unemployable. Further quoting the commission's report: "The American people must be awakened by the economic and moral problems connected with these classes. The nation's first duty is the conservation of its human resources."—The Living Church.

Intensive Religion

Intensive religion is a preparation, a training, a means of power. We seem to need more religion today to satisfy our ideals in life than our fathers needed. Hence the greater spiritual advantages that, in most places, the church is giving.

But the supreme reason for this greater need is that we recognize today a greater duty resting upon us. It is our religion that is impelling us to be better citizens; citizens that do something worth while in place of citizens that aim to keep out of the police court. It is our religion that makes us attack a social system that puts a man in jail if he steals bread but also trusts to chance to enable him to work for his bread; that produces wealth boundlessly and trusts to chance to distribute it; that maims, injures, and saps health from its workers and trusts to chance to keep them from starving. It is our religion that has sent us back to first principles to find what is wrong with such a system and impels us to correct it or supplant it with a better one.—The Living Church.

NEW PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR

REV. D. M. M'IVER.

Mr. McIver recently accepted the pastorate of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church. He has been in Atlanta for two weeks.

DRUID HILLS PRESBYTERIAN WELCOMES NEW PASTOR

Rev. D. M. McIvers, of Texarkana, Ark., Here

The members of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, which has been without a pastor since the death of Dr. T. E. Converse last December, are welcoming their new pastor, Rev. D. M. McIver.

Mr. McIver has only been here two weeks, but is actively at work laying plans to build up the membership. Already the organized forces are at work, tea mwork is being outlined and the church seems to be on the threshold of a rapid advance.

Rev. Mr. McIver, though a native of North Carolina, has been pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Texarkana, Ark., for the last four years. The Texarkana paper in announcing his resignation of the First Presbyterian church, states that though the church was disorganized when he accepted the pastorate, that the membership had been greatly increased, and a debt of $11,000 paid off. The church led all the Presbyterian churches in that presbytery in per capita offerings for benevolent causes.

The Druid Hills congregation are arranging to hold the evening services on the lawn of the church during the summer months.

Praise Meeting at R. R. Y. M. C. A.

Songs, praise and testimony will be the character of the meeting at the Railroad Young Men's Christian association rooms, 31 1-2 West Alabama street, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The secretary will have charge. The music will be a feature of the hour. Railroad men and their friends are specially invited to attend.

Savannah Has New Churches

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 20.—Savannah is just finishing one church and is about to start work on another. The edifice that is receiving its finishing touches is Epworth Methodist on Bull street. The one upon which work is to start in the South Side Baptist. The Presbyterians have also recently completed one.

Will Speak Sunday

REV. H. C. RISNER.

Mr. Risner, who is pastor of the Broadway Baptist church, of Knoxville, Tenn., will speak Sunday morning and night at the Baptist Tabernacle.

PRESBYTERIAN CHANGES HAVE BECOME EFFECTIVE

Dr. Charles I. Thompson, Secretary of Home Missions, Resigns as Agreed

NEW YORK, June 20.—The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Thompson, for many years secretary of the Presbyterian board of home missions, one of the largest home societies in America, and chairman of the home missions council which includes in membership all home mission societies, has resigned in accordance with agreements fixed up at the recent general assembly of the Presbyterian church in Chicago, and three secretaries have just been chosen in his place. One of these secretaries, the Rev. Dr. Baxter P. Fullerton, of St. Louis, is to have charge of Presbyterian church extension work, and to have headquarters in St. Louis, which city is for the first time to become a national headquarters for the Presbyterian church—the large northern body. The other secretaries chosen are the Rev. Dr. John Dixon, and Joseph E. McAfee.

A committee has been named to raise, if possible, the large sum of money, more than $400,000 needed to pull the home and foreign Presbyterian mission boards out of debt. The former fell behind for the first time in fifteen years, and the latter has the largest debt in its recent history.

The changes in this home board come as result of the contest between home mission interests in the middle west and the Rocky mountain presbyteries, demanding larger vote and more voice in the mission fields which they themselves knew more about than officers in New York. The outcome is the establishment of an extension work office with a special secretary in St. Louis and larger representation on the board itself. Another change is the creation of a Presbyterian home missions council, not connected with the board, but with the general assembly. This council is to meet once a year and have one delegate from each synod and is to make suggestions about home missions work to the general assembly. Everybody in the controversies, which have raged for more than two years, claims to have won.

Woman Labor in Europe

(The Living Church.)

As some one said the other day, How differently the question of the work of women is treated in European countries from the way it is in American states! In Europe fourteen of the leading nations have entirely prohibited the work of women between certain periods at night by international treaty. This treaty was the result of a conference called by the International Association for Labor Legislation in Berne in 1906. To this conference delegates were sent by the governments of Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Hungary, Itlaly, Luxemburg, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, and an international convention forbidding night work for women was signed by all the fourteen countries. By 1912 all of the countries except Denmark had enacted legislation embodying the provisions of the convention and had ratified the treaty.

Raise Standards of Living

(The Living Church.)

It is our religion that has developed a sense of international responsibility. If we are no longer impelled by a belief that each particular convert from paganism has been snatched from everlasting damnation, we are much more alive, than were our fathers, to the grave responsibility resting upon us to raise the standards of living, to give an eternal perspective, to deliver the gospel message, among all men everywhere. Our religion has expanded from a thing personal to ourselves, to a thing that embraces all mankind. The emphasis upon our religion is world-wide instead of individual or parochial. We are much less interested in petty questions of parochial difficulties; we are much more concerned with the idea of making our religion permeate the social order at home and be carried to the uttermost parts of the earth, that gradually it may percolate through the social orders of other lands and develop in every man the full measure of spiritual life of which he is capable.

Crackers Win First Game of Season From Lookouts--Two Games Today

Long Rejected Paige's Petition for Come-Back

Tom's Hitting, Williams' Pitching and Jennings' Fielding Prove Stumbling Block to George Paige in His Trial Out

By Innis Brown

The Crackers butted rudely in on a little routine stuff, which for a time appeared likely to become tradition at Ponce de Leon Friday afternoon. They waded in boldly and larruped the Chattanooga baseball club by the decisive score of 4 to 1, after first assuring themselves that the visitors would neither bite, scratch nor bowl them over with one mighty stroke of their prehensile arms. In fact, they hopped onto the Moosemen with all the vigor of a small boy who suddenly discovers that what he first thought was a bogey man is nothing more than some familiar object of his daily acquaintance and that his fears and trepidations were ill-founded.

You see this is the first game that the Crackers have won from the McCormicks this season. True enough, on two occasions the home boys have quit the field of battle on even terms with the enemy, no decision having been reached after the regulation nine innings of play. But ties don't help the club standing and, anyway, draws are unsatisfactory on all sides. Now the thing of the Lookouts winning was fast becoming a habit, and habit carefully nursed along through any considerable period is likely to assume many of the proportions of tradition. Hence, the assertion that Friday's battle served to jar the situation aloose from any long line of antecedents that might likely work its psychic effect on our boys in future games.

But at the same time that the game served to tear apart any component parts of a habit-making tendency it also went to show that they do run true to form at times. For instance, it may be used as argument paracelcence that "They can't come back." Just take the case of Piggy Paige. You all know Piggy. About every baseball fan in the Southern league could take one sheet at the bulky form of the adipose Mr. Paige disappearing in the distance and pick him out from a passing throng. This is largely because Piggy has extended his diamond efforts in the interest of no less than four clubs in this league now that he has had a premier with the Lookouts. At one time Piggy was a Cracker.

Well, Piggy has been devoting his time and energy to lines other than baseball for some little time past. But the lure is ever there and a short time back Piggy confided to Charlie Street that he was as good as he ever was, in any rate, he believed he was, and Charlie, good natured fellow that he is, volunteered to employ his good offices in stunts that were calculated to get his name back on the pay roll of a Southern league ball club. Other moves contemplated to assist Piggy's aspirations. The Lookouts were in sore need of hurlers, what with the failure of some one or five that Manager McCormick had rounded up from the four corners of the land.

So Piggy was slipped the privilege of showing that the old soup bone still packs a few winning ball games, provided it is properly nursed and fed and cared along. He was taken on a day or so ago, and drew his first chance to substantiate his claim against the Crackers Friday. To look at the hit column one might readily decide that Piggy carried truth in his conviction. But another authority can be cited which hands down a dissenting opinion. This authority is written by Thomas Long, eminent author of baseballs and left fielder of the Atlanta club. But for the forceful analysis of Piggy's case by the late alert Mr. Long Piggy might today be ambling around with his face all wreathed in smiles, clinner evidence that he had the situation down right from the beginning.

There is no absolute proof that Tom has any grudge or hard feelings against Piggy, but if Piggy's job with the Lookouts depends on the result of that Friday game, he has good and sufficient reason to harbor all the malice in the land against Sir Thomas. Nay, more, he might justly be tempted to commit all the crimes in the calendar against Tom, from kicking him in the shins, to mayhem, with ample hope of being exonerated at the hands of any jury of twelve of his ball-playing peers.

Long scored his first counting point against Piggy in the very opening chapter, barely omitting time for the prelude. And in the opinion of any of the two or three thousand fans who saw the game, the point was well and timely made. To begin with, Big Jacobson had caught Mutt Williams in a hole in the first half of the opening round, and with two men down, and the count three and two, had soaked a straight one between Long and Welchonce for a personally conducted tour of the bases. Tommy had to chase that drive, and despite the recent change in the weather to a somewhat cooler degree, it was hot work legging it way back nearly to the fence in left.

Well, when Sir Thomas was slipped his chance to break even, two men were on ahead of him. McConnell and Kircher had stood by and watched Paige's vain efforts to get the ball over, and had walked. Ethel showed them along with a sacrifice. Then up strode Tommy. He caught a choice slant squarely on the trademark, and shot it rapidly to right center. Shanley chased over to take a desperate chance at holding the drive to a single, and the ball bounded past him. Once under way, Tommy is a speedy craft, and he beat that throw home, scoring the two men ahead of him.

Not content with this performance, Tom smote another cleanly on his next trip up, though it went to seed, so far as scoring any runs was concerned. But he wasn't through even then. On his next pilgrimage to the plate he found G. Kircher perched on second, where he had arrived after drawing a pass and swiping the next cushion. Tom smashed out another single, and George rups up run No. 4. That was enough. In fact, his first whack had done Imeasurable damage to the invaders.

In the meantime, Mutt Williams had been taking some little hand in the sketch which was calculated to shake Manager McCormick's faith in Piggy's return. With two down in the first, Big Jake made his circuit smash. Johnson had walked previously, but was picked off by Joe Dunn trying to steal. Ens fanned, but after Jake poled the long one, Shanley singled, and Coyle walked. Flick obligingly lined to Jennings.

By this time, Mutt had gotten his bearings, and he whiffed the next five men to face him. Jacobson broke the monotony of the performance by grounding to Jennings for the third out in the third round. It was not until the seventh that the Mooses landed another safe blow. They got to Mutt for two in both the seventh and eighth, but with men on first and second, he whiffed Big Jake for the third out in the eighth.

Morley Jennings might also be held as an accessory to the undoing of Paige. The local shortstop took care of no less than eleven chances without the semblance of a bobble. Furthermore a part of his turn was sensational. He capped the climax in the seventh frame. With men on first and second, and one down, Fred Graff smashed a wicked drive to Morley's left. He ran over, scooped it up, tagged the base, forcing Flick, and passed to Ethel in time to smother Graff at the first control.

In short, Long, Williams and Jennings formed the triumvirate that handed down the adverse opinion on the application of Piggy Paige for reinstatement.

HERE'S WHY SENATORS' PITCHING STAFF IS A MARVEL; GRIFFITH A GREAT TEACHER

Clark Griffith's great star, Walter Johnson, and two youthful cracks the "Old Fox" developed.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Clark Griffith, manager of Washington, has qualified as the greatest teacher of pitchers the game has known. All around the American league circuit they are telling of Griffith's "luck" in finding pitchers. It is not luck at all. Grit took young, inexperienced men and has taught them the art of pitching, so that, in one season or shorter time under his teaching, they are as far ahead as they would have been in two or three seasons under other management.

The pitching of Ayres, Shaw and Bentley this year has been one of the astonishing features of the race; almost as much of a sensation as the showing of Boehling was last year. Ayres especially has pitched remarkable ball ever since the start and has kept the Washington team up within striking distance of the top in one of the hardest races the league ever has had. I talked with Griffith about it.

"I probably devote more time to my pitchers than any of the other managers do," he remarked. "I try to show them all I ever knew of pitching and work with them until they get the idea. Once a pitcher grabs the idea and commences applying it for himself he is thinking what he is doing. That is the hardest thing of all to do to get a pitcher who keeps thinking, especially in the tight places. Altrock was an inmeasurable help to me in teaching the young pitchers, especially the left handers."

After Walter Johnson lost his seventh game of the season I asked Griffith if anything was the matter with the big fellow. Griffith said there was not.

"You know," he said, "that when the other pitcher is holding your team to nothing your pitcher does not work as well. You will see that in the games Johnson has lost the majority were shut-outs for us. After the other team had gained the lead and it was evident we were beaten, the big fellow let up a little in his work and took things easily. Any time we get a run or two for him and give him a chance to win, he pitches just as well as he ever did.

"Don't be worrying about Johnson. When we start hitting he'll win all his games."

There is an odd trick of fate in Johnson's case this year. It is not that he is pitching poorly, but that every one is out to beat him. Opposing managers practically concede that they are beaten when he takes the slab and they throw in some youngster with nothing but hope.

This year the youngsters have been rising to the occasion and pitching shutout ball. Rankin Johnson, of Boston, beat Walter two out of three games, and I to 0, 4 to 0 and then beat one, 1 to 0. Every young busher wants a shot at the great Johnson now. Chicago beat him with Benz, and Cleveland came back and sent Bowman against him and Bowman shut him out.

From now on every club in the circuit will want a shot at Johnson and will throw his arm off to beat him—if he never beats anyone else. And you know confidence is two-thirds of it.

Jack Doscher and Key Perryman Will Try to Make Three Straight Against Lookouts—Sline and Quarders Likely to Oppose Them

Beginning at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, Smiling Jack Doescher and Key Perryman will assume the burden of the box work when Manager Bill Smith sends them over to the mound in the first game of the series with the Lookouts. Both will be pitted against Chattanooga at noon at Ponce de Leon park, provided the count with the hooky score of 4 to 1, headed by the king of the Lookouts, Harold Moose McCormick, of course. Of the nine battles staged to date, the Mooses have come through with the verdict in six, two have been declared no-decisions, while the home boys have seized just one contest. Therefore, behooves Messrs. Doescher and Perryman to fall to again and get further opportunity easier.

It is not known definitely just what will slab for the Mooses, but it is known that William Sline and Dutch Quarders will be rushed into the breach. Sline has had considerable experience, having chased before the game and finished while Quarders is an unknown quantity locally. According to advice received from Chattanooga, the Moosers have chances to continue on the same line as the Lookouts depends largely on the showing against the Crackers. Under the circumstances, it may be expected that the opposing artillerymen will be on the job with a vim from the start.

However, there is little cause for fear of such outcome, for the Moose look like a bunch of selling platers on their initial visit here, and since the invasion they were murdering the ball, a thing that came over the plate so once they got a man on, they were hammering everything that came in sight. As a result, they got the two games handed to them by the locals to play a similar type of game, though handicapped by a run.

Furthermore, when the Lookouts came here, their pitchers were having great shape. Their stop here was the first of their southern invasion. The trip served to dull a few edges of effectiveness, and they have now regained their stride. Quite certain they are not as dangerous now as they were, when they first blew here this season. Furthermore, the Crackers are playing the best ball of the season to date just now, and the pitchers appear to have regained form. Therefore, little reason why the locals should not annex considerable way toward the series by taking four games during the remaining four games of this series. The games will be called at 2:30 o'clock, beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

Carl Thompson Reports Today

According to a wire received by Manager Bill Smith, Pitcher Carl Thompson is expected to report to the club today. Thompson has been out several weeks since, Carl's release was purchased from the Jersey City club, headed by the king of baseball, Harold Moose McCormick, of course. To date, the Mooses have come through with the verdict in six, two have been declared no-decisions, while the home boys have seized just one contest. Therefore, behooves Messrs. Doescher and Perryman to fall to again and get further opportunity easier.

ANCIENT HISTORY.

How speed the ages on their way,
How old Doc Time must flutter by,
How brief, alas! each vanished day
As centuries arise and die;
For here I see it jotted down
In history's famed downs and ups,
Where Babylon was quite a town—
And Uncle Sam held all the cups.

But yesterday J. Caesar cleaned
The pennant up in vanished Gaul;
Last yesterday Kid David beaned
Goliah with his swiftest ball;
For I remember from the mold
Of Things That Were, the Roman shield;
How Cleopatra knocked 'em cold—
And Uncle Sam mopped up the field.

Within my den at night I read
Forgotten ledgers of the years;
I pray age on age I lamp the screed
Of Hector's fall and Helen's tears;
Aye, back beyond Time's fading ridge
I trail each hero's downs and ups;
When old Horatius held the bridge—
And Uncle Sam held all the cups.

WHAT, INDEED?.

What do you make of it, Watson? Frankly, it's beyond us—unless Fate and the Destinies have decided that it is high time for the prophecy to come true where "the last shall be first and the first shall be in the end of the row."

When Cincinnati dived headlong into second place, we marveled, but not that all rules must know an exception.

When Bill Lobly Browns emerged from the rut and swept into the first division we marveled further, but let it go at that.

When the Cardinals wiggled from last place we began to exhibit misgivings, and when they kept on until they had become tightly wedged in fourth place misgivings began to develop in intensity.

But the last straw of all. Skimming along in the wake of Reds, Browns and Cardinals to we have jolly old England, bless 'er bally soul, begin to exhibit the familiar symptoms, no wonder we were dazed and disjointed in the league turn.

THE EQUALITY OF MAN.

The rise of the lowly may be after all forecasting the promised equality of man, and the coming dignity of labor.

We have the rise of the Socialists and the uproar of the Militants and the three cent trolley fare and the foot are beginning to turn with the trodden worm—and to seek a loftier elevation. The movement, or rather no motion, is world wide. It must be when Reds, Browns, Cardinals and Cubs are all swing into line within one fantastic season and begin to battle for their oppressors.

First thing you know some White Hope will be trimming a regular fighter. The White Sox will start hitting the ball and the Yanks will blow themselves to a victory.

THE GIDDY UPSET.

No upset in sport's history so far has staged as many gay and giddy stunts as a champion, has been displaced. Ritchie, another champion, was soundly walloped. And to this can be added the four upheavals above.

HARD ON THE CHAMPS.

Uncle Sam, accustomed to a hurry call on the Champs, has been harpooned three straight times in the first start. He has lost in a row three international battles with Britain. Not only a brief span ago he could paddle the padding out of Old Father John, resting comfortably in a rocking chair during the round.

But the lugged blow has fallen athwart Walter Johnson, who has finished one season in his career. The star pitcher has been hit by a thud and has already lost as many games as he dropped all of last season.

The history of another international conflict under way from Ireland to England again on the firing line. But we have already counted that out of football status, and another blow here can do no great harm.

Hitchbrows in golf and polo have been unable to curb the fray, the case now goes up to a brow of lower angle, but at present it is a wallop in either paw. We refer to the stand Mr. Ouimet and Mr. Welsh on July Fourth. If they beat us there is nothing much to do except swallow the sponge and leave golf to us even a tennis and a yachting victory couldn't yank us from the vantage of .500.

SHARP SPORT JABS

Hughie Jennings rolls over wire-tapping Ban Johnson. Down McGraw ought to go, then the other fellow can step in and do the job.

Steve Evans dropped the Boston New York. What's the use of trying to conceal that fact in the world?

Cobb has been smashed over the head. One must run into the runs his team-mates make.

The White Sox declares Ed Walsh is all right. Not so bad, a few efforts a cure.

Can't afford to pay Walter Johnson. He will have them who don't have to enlarge the salary list by pitching.

Pittsburg going back to Pittsburg will be quite as much of a novelty as the Athletics will be if they ever get home from the two weeks before returning home.

Some of the fellows who yelled all spring that Hitchcock was through were hot weather prophets themselves already when asked to speak every other day.

The S. P. C. A. ought to intervene. Carl Morris has been licking Jim Flynn again.

Our idea of nothing to do in politics is what a Chicago judge has done—lined up all the Cubs, Sox and Fed players in his support. Only three of them can't vote there.

Perhaps the most unenthusiastic person over the rumor that New York is to get Heine Zimmerman is John McGraw.

Here, here—you fellow bidding $100,000 for Walter Johnson, can't you wait until Garry orders a couple more bottles?

Umpires O'Loughlin and Hildebrand have been presented to Prexy Wilson—and went without either masks or chest protectors.

Charles Dillingham is going to can chorus girls' voices. Our idea was that the voice was the least important part of a chorus girl.

Charlie White is said to have made a name for himself when he licked Willie Ritchie. We thought he made one for himself when he became White.

Suggestion—Why not get Gertrude Stein to write the football rules? She couldn't make them more un-understandable.

Orr in Tennis Finals Today

Atlanta Player Won Two of Three Sets Friday, When Darkness Stopped Play—Finish Match Today

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 20.—After a day's interruption on account of rain play was resumed in the South Atlantic States Tennis tournament Friday morning and the several matches which were pulled through during the day furnished sensations. In the semi-finals Bain of Philadelphia, easily defeated Jennings of Atlanta, with a loss of but two games. The other semi-final match between J. K. Orr., Jr., of Atlanta, and G. Wa Waring of Columbia, resulted in a win for Orr in three desperately contested sets.

The finals between Orr and Bain were begun at 2:30 in the afternoon and at end of the third set, with Orr leading two sets to one, darkness intervened and play was discontinued until this morning. In doubles the semi-finals were reached and these two matches, Carter and Orr vs. White and Redfern and Waring and Waring vs. Phinizy and Cary will be played Saturday. The winners of the two matches will meet in the finals this afternoon.

Several interesting matches were played in the consolation singles Clark Waring lost a hard fought match to Nurnberger, a local player, which went the limit of three sets.

The match between Orr and W. Waring was a clash between the back court and net style of play. By the splendid accuracy of his passing shots and lobs Orr won the first set from Waring 6-4 Thursday morning when rain interrupted the play. Friday morning the South Carolinian was forced to begin one set behind, but by desperate work on service and at the net he won a set from the Atlanta player at 6-4, bringing matters to a tie. Orr took the lead in the deciding set and got to 4-1. Waring went after the next two games and got to 4-3, but was checked by the deadly accuracy of Orr's placing shots and the Atlanta player pulled out the set at 6-3, thus coming through to the finals. Orr's game throughout this match was a marvel of steadiness and accuracy and the deceptiveness of his strokes was no small factor in his victory.

Time and again the Columbia player watched balls pass him that appeared to be going out of the bounds, only to see them strike within the boundaries of his court.

Orr continued to display his accuracy in the finals against Bain. Here he had a different style of play to contend with, for Bain plays a back court game and depends upon long drives far back into his opponent's territory, seldom coming to the net.

The Atlanta layer won the first two sets by superior steadiness and wonderful placing. In the third set Bain brought out all of his reserve strength and finally checked his opponent, winning at 6-3. Bain had been within one one point of winning the second set only to be thwarted by the never-say-die spirit of the dougherty little Georgian.

During the past week the playing of J. K. Orr, Jr., has proved the sensation of the tournament. Small, thin and extremely round shouldered, with apparently no physical strength, it is hard to say which is the greater, his accuracy or his endurance. In an ordinary match he expends little energy and doesn't even warm up. When put to it he opens up and he covers the court without speeding up except on rare occasions. Orr went through the tournament without the loss of a set to the semi-finals, defeating Elmer Waring, of Columbia in the fourth round. In the semi-final match with Wingate Waring he dropped one set, due to his opponent's aggressiveness and his own policy of watchful waiting.

Scores of the matches played yesterday follow:

SINGLES, SEMI-FINAL ROUND.

Bain defeated Jennings, 6-3, 6-0.
Orr defeated W. Waring, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

FINALS.

Waring and Waring defeated Wall and Hester, 6-1, 6-1.
Phinizy and Gary defeated Lee and Kennedy, 6-4, 9-7.

CONSOLATION SINGLES—THIRD ROUND.

Nurnberger defeated S. Waring, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Augusta Protests All Lost Games

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 20.—Acting on instructions received from President Kahfleish, of the Augusta club, Manager Brouthers is protesting every game played in which Outfielder Shaw is barred by a ruling of President Corish that Shaw is not eligible. Thursday's game was protested, but as the contest ended in a victory for Augusta, Brouthers withdrew the protest. He protested Friday's game.

Athletes Sail For England

LONDON, June 20.—The advance guard of American athletes who will compete in England for the British amateur championship next month, sailed Friday. The departing athletes were Harry Smith, the American two-mile champion, and Home Baker, of the New York Athletic club. Smith will compete in the four-mile run and Baker will be a starter in the half-mile.

WHAT BIG LEAGUES DID YESTERDAY.

Beals Becker hit a home run in the game between the Cubs and Phillies. It was his third in three successive days. Leach for the Cubs hit for the circuit beginning the tenth, with the score tied.

Dave Robertson was the hitting sensation of the Giants-Reds game at the Polo Grounds. The Ex-Gull nailed three infour trips to the plate.

John Collins and Russell Blackburne carried off batting honors in the White Sox-Reds game in Chicago. Each made 3. Blackburne was up three times, and Collins four. Speaker has a triple in three times up.

Three double plays by the Athletics did not ward off a defeat at the hands of the St. Louis Browns. Rickey's men gathered five runs in the first inning largely through opportune hitting. Clyde Wares had two hits in three times up.

Boehling passed Cobb and Crawford purposely in the tenth inning of the game between the Senators and Tigers, then Veach singled, scoring the winning run. Cobb had three hits in three times up. Zeb Milan also collared three hits, but he was up five times.

The Phillies lost to the Cubs through an error by Ireland, a recruit infielder in the tenth. The Daisies are kicking away games frequently through the weakness left in their line-up by the desertion of Knabe and Doolan. Milton Reed has been tried several times, but with indifferent success.

Baseball Heads Meet in N. Y.

International League Asks That Draft Rule Be Removed in Order to Buck Federal Circuit

NEW YORK, June 20.—An increase in the number of major leagues in organized baseball by the removal of the draft rule from the Class AA leagues is one of the methods said to be under consideration by the national commission in its war against the Federal league. At its meeting it is expected that the national commission will grant the demand of President E. G. Barrows, of the International league, and Manager Dunn, of the Baltimore club of that organization, for the removal of the draft rule. The International league officials claim that the Federal league has made its hardest fights for patronage in their territory. They argue that with the draft rule removed the International league will assume the classification of a major league and thereby be in a better position to combat the Federal league opposition. This same argument applies also to the American association and to the Pacific Coast league, the other two Class AA leagues, and, should the demand of the International league be granted, these organizations are almost certain to make similar requests to be classed as majors.

The National league club owners, also in session here today, await word of the action of the national commission as to plans for concerted action against the Federals. It is said that while there is much opposition in the National league to the demand of the International for major league recognition, it will die out if the supreme court of baseball wills that it is to the best interests of all concerned to remove the draft rule from one or all of the Class AA circuits.

President Ban Johnson, of the American league, is said to be in favor of raising the International to major league prominence, and President Tener, it is reported, is inclined to side with President Johnson, if no better means can be devised to maintain the supremacy of organized baseball. The attitude of Chairman Garry Herrmann, of the national commission, cannot be learned, but he is known to favor any plan, however drastic, to stop the growth of the new "outlaw" Federals.

Yale Defeats Harvard Crew

Yale Varsity Crew Crosses Line One Foot Ahead of Harvard in Greatest Race on Thames

NEW LONDON, June 20.—Yale won the four-miles varsity race from Harvard Friday by one foot, after the most sensational race that has ever been rowed over the four-mile course on the Thames river. It was first believed by the judges that Harvard had won, but after several minutes of conferring the judges decided that Yale had been the victor by one foot. Harvard took the lead at the start and held it until near the second mile, when Yale forged ahead. The Crimson crew had a slight lead at the three-mile mark. Nearing the finish the two crews were on even terms.

The official time of the varsity race was: Yale, 21:16; Harvard, 21:16 1-5.

As the starting signal was given Yale appeared to get the quickest grip on the water and shot forward with Harvard a few feet in the rear. Both strokes set a pace of close to 40 to the minute for a short distance and then settled down for the long race ahead.

As the first mile flags slipped behind, Yale had increased her lead to three-quarters of a length, using a 30 stroke to Harvard's 32. Half way to the finish Yale held her three-quarters length lead, although Harvard was rowing four strokes to the minute faster.

Between the two and a half and three-mile flags the shells ran into choppy water and both hung badly between strokes.

In the final fight, the two crews held their rowing form in splendid fashion and the two shells crossed the line as though driven by motors, Chanler stroking 30 for Harvard to Appleton's 36 for Yale.

Market in New York Closed 8 to 15 Points Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of three to six points today with October contracts selling below 12½ cents for the first time since the publication of the government's crop report at the beginning of the month. Lower Liverpool cables, improving crop accounts and favorable weather advices seemed to be creating a more bearish sentiment around the ring, but the decline attracted a good deal of realizing for over the week-end, while it also seemed to be bringing in a little trade or investment buying, and prices rallied three or four points during the early trading.

The market broke later under heavy liquidation and bear pressure with the close barely steady at a net decline of 8 to 15 points.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—Poor cables and favorable weather worked against values in the cotton market around the opening call today. Week-end realizing by shorts, however, held the decline to narrow proportions. First prices were two to three points off and after the call the market stood two to four points off.

Selling increased on the outlook for continued good weather over Sunday. July developed decided weakness and the new crops were none too steady. At the lowest the trading months were at a net loss of 11 to 21 points. The close was 9 to 19 points off.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—The cotton market has declined during the past week with October contracts selling at 12.52 today, or $2.70 per bale under the recent high record. Favorable weather conditions in the south and unfavorable foreign trade advices have created a more bearish or reactionary sentiment in local circles, but short sellers have not been aggressive and most of the pressure against the market has been attributed to realizing or liquidation of long accounts. Continued nervousness over the poor start of the crop and expectations that the coming official report will show little increase, if not an actual decrease in acreage have probably restricted bear pressure, while there have also been rumors of moderate trade buying on declines and predictions of a broadening demand from that source on a scale down. Bullishly disposed operators have partly attributed the gloomy view of trade conditions, as expressed in leading textile circles abroad to an effort to influence raw material markets and the influence of better weather advices has also been modified to some extent by the fact that many of the crop reports reaching the trade continue to indicate a very poor outlook for the ultimate yield, while ideas as to the improvement likely to be shown by the July bureau have also been modified by the condition figures of a local authority, indicating deterioration of over 2 per cent in the crop between May 25 and June 10. These conflicting views have doubtless been largely responsible for irregular fluctuations and frequent rallies and the smaller volume of general business may mean disposition to await fresh crop developments and the further evening up of July contracts in preparation for the notices expected on Friday.

STOCK MARKET OPINIONS.

New York Commercial: The market is firm with a rising tendency.

Times: Prices hardening in the face of further contraction.

Wall Street Journal: Inter-Metropolitan influenced by liquidation of speculative lines acquired about a week ago.

Sun: Sentiment is hopefully inclined abroad and the prospect is satisfactory for large French loan July 7.

Post: A most significant incident is a further sharp fall in the rate for sterling exchange.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET CONTINUES VERY NARROW

Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Car Foundry, Bethlehem Steel, Copper Up

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—Aside from some slight activity at higher prices in the various issues of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway and the Rock Island company in connection with the reorganization plan there were no features of interest in today's early market. Gains in the securities of the operating company were from a substantial fraction to two and one-half points. Even the issues of the Rock Island holding company, which are subject to effacement under the new plan, were inclined to improve. Elsewhere in the list changes were without note and trading was extremely light.

Attention was diverted from Rock Island in the course of the brief session and shifted to such seasoned leaders as Union Pacific and United States Steel, which were in good demand at substantial advances. Other active issues reflected the general improvement. Announcement that the freight rate decision was unlikely to be made public for another week, was without effect on sentiment, as were also trade reports which indicated backward conditions.

Bonds were firm.

The market closed firm.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Bradstreet's Review says: "Excellent all-round crop advices continue to extend the circle of optimism which widens at a greater rate than actual buying. However, evidences of improvement in trade are accumulating in the surplus crop growing sections which is in sharp contrast to that noticed in the essentially industrial regions. But over a large area distribution at retail is better, wholesale trade is looking up, demand for iron and steel is larger, collections are somewhat easier, traffic on western railroads is increasing and heavy sales of wheat for export are reported. Activity is the keynote of northwestern reports, returns from the winter wheat belt are assuring in the mid-west interior distributors are buying more freely and trade news from the south, though somewhat mixed, is more encouraging in the main because of the favorable trend of crop reports. On the other hand, trade in the east develops rather slowly and a similar statement applies to the Pacific northwest.

"For the week: Bank clearings $3,139,180,000, a decrease of 4.5 per cent from last year; wheat exports, 3,685,308 bushels, against 5,328,428 last year; failures, 249, against 235."

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Sunday.

Atlanta and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday; slightly cooler tonight.

Georgia: Generally fair tonight and Sunday; slightly cooler tonight in north portion.

Alabama: Generally fair tonight and Sunday; cooler tonight in extreme north portion.

Fine, clear weather prevails generally over the cotton belt, a little rain having occurred during the past 24 hours only at Mobile and Pensacola. A new area of high atmospheric pressure has appeared over the lakes accompanied by cooler weather, the temperature having fallen to 48 degrees at Duluth, Minn., and to 44 degrees, with heavy frost, at Sault Ste Marie, Mich. This indicates somewhat cooler weather for northern Georgia on Sunday and Monday, with northeasterly winds.

Generally fair weather prevails west of the Mississippi river, and a new storm has appeared over Montana with the pressure slightly below 29.70 inches. A few showers were reported in the upper plateau region.

Temperatures are higher in the south and reached 80 degrees at 7 a. m. as far north as Nashville. They are generally seasonable over the entire cotton belt.

Section Director.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Picayune says:

The speculator's legitimate function consists in discounting the news of the hour and in endeavoring to forecast the immediate future. Thus it is that the rings respond to the undoubted change which has taken place throughout the belt within the last ten days. Another fortnight of drought in the east and rain in the west would have brought the trade face to face with a crisis. Fortunately the rain ceased in the one case and began in the other in the very nick of time.

How much the boon means, as regards the ultimate yield, nobody can know or imagine, but the probability favors a distinctly better bureau report, as the correspondents will forward their data on June 25. It is upon the basis of this probability that the market is working just now.

Besides, veteran operators do not forget that the tendency is to exaggerate the good which follows the bad, and vice versa. Human nature being what it is, a really mediocre crop might look like a bumper, by contrasts with the distressing prospect which lifted October to 13 cents. Yet wise bears will not forget that, even with recent rains, the precipitation over the eastern belt for sixty-four days to June 18, was as follows:

Alabama—Actual, 4.07; normal, 9.26.
Georgia—Actual, 3.75; normal, 8.07.
North Carolina—Actual, 4.27; normal, 9.31.
South Carolina—Actual, 6.38; normal, 9.62.

It goes without saying that the consequences of this deficiency cannot be wiped out in the twinkling of an eye any more than Texas can promptly get over the deluge by reveling in sunshine. And all sorts of vicissitudes remain to be reckoned with, not to speak of the weevil, which seems to be out for blood. With the July liquidation immiment, the situation is exceedingly delicate from all points of view. Seldom has it been more necessary to keep the head cool lest the feet freeze.

Map less favorable. Shows fair the entire belt, practically no rain. Temperatures rose considerably in the west and central belt, high in north Texas, Arkansas, Memphis district. Indications generally fair and warmer. Very favorable deport by prominent crop inspector on Alabama and Georgia.

Dallas wires: "Texas, clear and cool; Oklahoma, generally cloudy, no rain."

Forecast:

Louisiana and East Texas—Fair tonight and Sunday; gentle south winds on the coast.

Arkansas, Oklahoma and West Texas—Fair tonight and Sunday.

Alabama—Fair tonight and Sunday; cooler in extreme north portions.

Georgia—Fair tonight and Sunday; cooler in north portions tonight.

Kentucky—Fair tonight and Sunday, somewhat warmer.

Tennessee—Fair and somewhat cooler tonight; Sunday fair.

Mississippi—Generally fair Sunday; cooler in extreme north portion.

Pell brokers moderate buyers on opening. Liverpool and foreign brokers sold. No other feature on call. Dtmand after call very good.

Cordill out with very bearish report on Georgia and Alabama.

Memphis Tenn.—Generally fair, hot weather is indicated for entire cotton belt with perhaps few scattered local rains.

Riordan sold December; Hicks, Dick Bros. and Hayden, Stone also sold.

Hubbard selling July. Dick Bros. selling December.

Sentiment is rather against the market and it will be difficult to hold if weather continues favorable.—Clevenburg.

McFadden brokers good sellers.

Government record shows a temperature average of 100 degrees for Oklahoma yesterday.

Ring crowd taking profits on shorts. Norrie Sellar sold 2,500 October at 41 to Schill.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow, Jones summary:

Rock Island reorganization abolishes both holding companies, new 7 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock to be issued. President firm against adjournment of congress before trust program is finished. President insists on constitutionalist for Mexico head, and conference of mediators may break up this afternoon. House merchant marine committee reports favorably LaFollette's seamen's bill. Failures this week 249 against 245 previous week, 12 industrials. 81.38, up .08. Twenty rails 102.94, up .16.

Washington says: "Secretary Redfield of department of commerce says that reports received from many sources indicate business is unusually good for the time of the year and that prospects are that it will grow better."

Financial bureau:

Moderate recovery on short covering indicated for today. International institutions appear to be much more optimistic than for some time. Standard railroads paying good dividends are well taken.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Record-Herald says: Wheat was firm from the start to the finish. The advance in Liverpool, prospects for bullish foreign statistics and light country offerings were the strengthening influences at the start. Shorts were buying during the greater part of the day.

Corn bears are talking about a heavy movement of Argentine corn next month, which will be available in August and September. It is said the industrials' interest which has used most of the Argentine corn brought in in the last year has bought enough to supply its requirements for some months. Bears say that with Argentine corn coming into the east in August and with cheap bran, the bull side of corn will not be attractive at 70c and over.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say:

Wheat—We look for a narrow, but firm, market, and continue to believe in the long side.

Corn—The market, in our, opinion, is merely marking time before another upturn sets in.

Oats—Crop conditions coupled with a continuance of a good shipping demand, are the underlying factors of strength.

There is no promise of any change from dullness and stagnation!. Rock Island reorganization, but not yet positive, involves elimination of $357,000,000 worth old securities and provides an issue of $75,000,000 new preferred stock and an assessment of $15 per share on old common and preferred stock, with privileges to those who pay the assessment.

Buy good stocks on recessions.—Clark.

Snow's report on farmers' reserves on corn very bullish—Chapman.

I regard Mr. Snow's report upon stocks of corn still on the farm as very bullish. It shows that in three months we have used up 60 per cent. of the corn that was held in reserve on March 1, and we yet have about five months before new corn is available. Pig crop this year is very large and there will be more hogs and more cattle to feed this summer and fall than was the case last year It is certain that the feeding demand throughout the west will fully take care of all the corn that there is left, leaving it a serious question as to where corn for commercial purposes is to come from.—Rycroft.

WHEAT IN CHICAGO WAS WEAK IN LATE TRADING

Wheat Closed 5-8 to 7-8c Down—Corn, Pork, Lard and Sides Firm—Oats Are Off

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—Complaints of too much rain in the spring crop belt tended today to make wheat prices firm. The opening, which was ⅛ off to a shade advance, was followed by a moderate rise all around.

The wheat market later took a down shoot because of increased acceptances on bids from here for wheat to arrive. Closed weak, ⅝@¾@⅞c net lower.

Corn ascended in consequence of pit offerings being scarce. There were reports that the Tennessee crop cirtually was a failure and that Argentine grading would continue bad. After starting a shade lower to ⅜c up the market scored a general advance.

Subsequently the corn market climbed further owing to bullish estimates of reserves, but the effect failed to last. Closed steady at ¼@⅜@⅝c above last night.

Oats hardened with other grain. Trade, however, lacked volume.

Higher prices for hogs gave provisions an upward slant on the bulge, though selling was noticeably enlarged.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Another twelve points was subtracted from values today on professional selling and scattered liquidation due to a perfect weather map and pessimistic advices from Liverpool which stated the demand for spots was very poor. The dominating spot house appeared to be sellers of new crops but they were also buyers of July, probably to cover.

There was no large liquidation in evidence that could be traced to the houses credited with holding the bulk of the long cotton. One of the Wall street houses that has been prominent recently sold 10,000 to 18,000 bales and Alabama long interests appeared to be selling. The buying was scattered and looked to be mostly covering shorts.

There was only a moderate amount of mill buying. Sentiment locally became even more bearish than yesterday, and talk is heard in some quarters of 12-cent cotton, contingent, of course, on the weather. It would be well, however, not to follow the decline too far, as the market will be particularly sensitive to unfavorable weather this summer because of the poor start Texas had.—Clevenburg.

STOCK TRADING DURING WEEK WAS VERY SMALL

Although the Market Showed Symptoms of Heaviness, the Undertone Was Good

NEW YORK, June 20.—Speculators in stocks marked time this week. Trading was dull and movements of prices were small. Although the market showed symptoms of heaviness at times, the undertone in main was good. Hesitancy was due largely to the expectation of an early decision in the freight rate case, pending which operators feared to make heavy commitments.

The abnormally heavy flow of gold to Europe continued, the movement reaching such proportions that its influence began to show itself more distinctly the stock market. Demand sterling broke sharply from the recent high level, falling 100 points in three days, but exportation of gold continued.

The political outlook abroad improved and the cheerful tone of foreign markets was reflected in buying here for European account.

At home the news was varied. Of chief interest was the crop reports which were of the best. Business conditions were still unsatisfactory. President Wilson's insistence on comprehensive trust legislation at this session of congress was expected by the street. Mexican affairs weighed on the market occasionally, but the general inclination was to await definite indications of the outcome of the mediation proceedings.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—Liverpool was rather poor today, probably in consequence of Saturday realizing. Futures about two points lower than due. Spots eleven points down, sales 3,000.

Letters suggest that spinners are holding off owing to better weather and crop news.

Apprehension in regard to politics has also checked business lately, but the political skies appear to have cleared again.

The map shows fair weather practically over the entire belt; no rain of consequence. Temperatures rose in the central and western states and are rather high in the northwestern quarter. Indications are for generally fair in the belt with prospects of high temperatures in north Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

The map shows fair weather practically over the entire belt; no rain of consequence. Temperatures rose in the central and western states and are rather high in the northwestern quarter. Indications are for generally fair in the belt with prospects of high temperatures in north Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

We had a quiet Saturday market which eased on scattered selling and restricted support. There was no aggressive pressure and general talk seems to suggest sentiment more in favor of the market after the decline we have had.

The coming week will be an eventful one as it will include the July notice days and the last five days of the condition period for the coming bureau report. With July at such a discount under spots it is still believed that tenders will prove attractive to spot interests.

In respect to weather attention is now mainly fixed on temperatures west. Government records show a temperature average of 100 degrees for Oklahoma yesterday.

The market broke in the second hour to 12.40 for new crops on heavy liquidation and decline in July in New York which affected the entire list.

The market during the early part of next week depends on how much more July liquidation will take place in New York, and later on how tenders will be accepted. After settlement of the principal July interest, weather conditions will again be the ruling factor.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 21, 1914.

This is a calm day, so far as planetary interference is concerned. Venus is in a benefic aspect, while Mercury is mildly adverse.

Astrologers hold that the influences are particularly favorable for the association of friends, the making of new acquaintances and the entertainment of men and women of every vocation. The kindly influence of Venus is believed to be conducive to geniality, cordiality and sympathy.

Gardens are under a favorable government, and lovers will find harmonious influences, the seers declare, when they wander among flowers or sit beneath trees.

While the rule is fortunate for lovers, letter writing is not likely to be lucky owing to Mercury's aspect, which is not good for correspondence.

There is an auspicious sign for collections, and for that reason the churches should benefit today.

Ministers and all who seek a hearing from the public should be particularly successful while this figure lasts, for the planetary vibrations are believed to make persons responsive and appreciative.

Hotel keepers should prosper. According to the stars this day should bring them many guests and much money. There is a lucky omen for managers of summer resorts.

It is prophesied that a western man, probably a Californian, will win fame in Mexico and write his name in history.

There is a sign interpreted as warning to the mayors of great cities. They are to confront serious problems, owing to agitation and discontent among working men and women. There is a threatening omen for the mayor of New York and the mayor of San Francisco.

Revelations concerning the mismanagement of large amounts of money belonging to philanthropic enterprises are foreshadowed.

Persons whose birthdate it is have an auspicious augury for both business and domestic affairs. The young will become engaged or will marry within the year.

Children born on this day will be trustworthy, self-reliant and successful. As they are on the cusp, they probably will partake of the characteristics of Cancer, the Crab, as well as of Gemini, which is believed to impart a twofold nature.

THE EVENING STORY

HER GREAT ADVENTURE

(Copyright, 1914, by W. Werner.)

For the first six weeks it had seemed the most interesting thing in the world to stand behind a counter at Marshall's and sell neckwear, but after that Honora began to realize it was simply work, and hard work at that. It took her six weeks longer to become fully acquainted with all the varieties of bows and ruchings and also with nearly all the varieties of woman who bought them. From that time selling was a mere grind, which produced only one flash of joy the whole week long—the receiving of her pay envelope, which contained just $6.

To a girl who has never earned money or handled anything bigger than 50-cent pieces in all her twenty years, $6 seemed a large sum at first. But the pleasure of possession was extremely evanescent. Hoard it as one may, $6 cannot more than cover even a small girl with decent garments and fill her stomach at the same time.

So in this glad morning which marked spring's first entrance into the gray, dusty city Honora's heart was full of disillusion as sne stood behind her counter and helped women to neckwear. It came to her sadly that she had not abandoned the country and all the old, tried ways of living for this. She had come to the city looking for the great adventure. Love some call it, others romance; but to Honora it was merely the great adventure. Where was one to find it in the country? But in the city it waited at every street corner. She had read books enough to know that. Aunt Maria, however, who was sixty-three and as thin and sour as a split pickle, said that the things of real life were not to be found in books, and that Honora had better marry Stephen Ladd while she had the chance. "I had the chance once to marry Stephen Ladd's father, and I wouldn't. And just see what I am now," said Aunt Maria. But Honora had no mind to marry Stephen Ladd. She was going up to the city to rub elbows with actual romance and seek the great adventure.

The great adventure, however, had proved singularly elusive. In a store full of pretty girls, many of them young, Honora was not particularly noticeable. Moreover, it was taking her a good while to recover from the stamp of the country. She had no money with which to buy new clothes, not even the spring coat she so hungered after. And she did not like the looks of the men she saw. They had an appearance of experience and hard-heartedness that made her shrink sensitively. Of one thing she felt certain, however, she would not go back to Northfield and marry Stephen Ladd if she had to live in her skylight room on rolls and coffee and bananas forever. Moreover,, she could not go back if she would without marrying him, for Aunt Maria had steel in her composition also, and a week ago she had written: "You needn't come back at all unless you'll marry Stephen. I've made up my mind to that." Honora knew that Aunt Maria meant just what she said, and a sense of desolation mingled with her disillusion. And she hated Stephen Ladd, who was keeping her away from home.

Noon came and Honora was relieved from duty. She pinned on her old velvet hat, drew on her old blue coat hastily and dashed toward a certain shabby little restaurant where one could get a huge lettuce sandwich and a cup of tea for 10 cents. The tea was necessary to supplement the sandwich. Of course, the menu could be varied by having two sandwiches with a glass of water. Today Honora decided in favor of the tea, because she felt she needed a heartener. With her chin in her hand she sat waiting for the order when some one reached round from the next table and touched her.

"Hello there!" said a voice.

Honora turned and recognized a girl who sold lace just across the aisle from her at Marshall's. This girl had on a smart little straw hat and a new coat was folded over the back of her chair. She was eating chops and salad.

"How do you do?" Honora replied.

"Do you know your sleeve's all ripped out or torn or something?" said the girl.

Honora flushed with dismay. She twisted her head over her shoulder and saw the wreck of the sleeve.

"Better get you a new coat," advised the girl; "one like mine. They've got some dandies just in. This was only nine ninety-eight. I'll go with you to the cloak department. She glanced at her watch. "There's plenty of time. They've got a new salesman in there. Gee, he's the limit."

Honora's eyes were so dim with tears that she could not see what she was eating. She gulped down her tea and choked down the sandwich, tasting sobs with every mouthful. Behind her the lace girl drummed on the table and waited. There seemed no way of escaping her.

Honora permitted herself to be led to the cloakroom and enveloped in two or three coats, any one of which would have made her perfectly happy to possess. There was one dull, soft brown which hid most of her shabby skirt and shirtwaist, even lent an air of grace to her old velvet hat. It brought the light to her face just to see herself in it. The salesman —not the new salesman—he was not there—recommended it and the lace girl said she wished she had taken that instead of the one she had. But Honora knew it was not for her. She had a glimpse of the price tag and it was marked $17.

"I can't afford it," she said firmly, and gave one last, longing, admiring look at herself in the glass.

At that instant the new salesman entered in the dim distance behind her. He was dressed neatly and was tall, bony and dark. It was evident he had not been born to the business of selling women's gear, so big and brown were his hands, so overlaid with muscle his shoulders. Before the glass Honora forgot her own reflection in the new coat and stared at his. She had slowly turned white.

"I get you, Steve! That's him," whispered the lace girl.

Stephen Ladd came forward and the other saleman, who had merely been waiting for him, withdrew.

Honora's face was crimson now. Her hands trembled as she stripped off the coat. Stephen received it as she took it off, and she felt him looking her full in the face. And there stood the lace girl, still giggling!

"Is there any other coat I can show you?" he asked, just as if he had never seen her before.

"No, thank you," gasped Honora. She reached for her old blue coat, but Stephen was before her, and as he held it up, the torn sleeve dangling, Honora felt as if she were going to die. She snatched it from him and fled.

All that afternoon she sold neckwear blindly and supposed she made no mistakes. But she could only think of one thing. Stephen Ladd was working there in that very store! He knew the struggle she was having to live. He knew that she could not afford to buy a new coat. He knew that she knew that he appeared better in a transplanted state than she did.

Faint, pale and aching with fatigue, Honora passed outof the side door of the big store. She was wearing her coat with the sleeve pinned in. Outside a tall young man in brown stepped to her side and caught step with her. Honora set her lips tight and hurried on, apparently unheeding.

"Honora," said Stephen, "you know, of course, that I came here on your account. I've been trying for two months to get into Marshall's. Part of that time I've been learning how to sell cloaks at Clark's. I only got my transfer yesterday. I've seen you every day."

"You've been a spy!" cried Honora.

"No," replied Stephen quietly; I've been a watchdog."

Honora's lips were trembling and the tears came. She put up her handkerchief; then, wheeling suddenly, she pretended to stare into a window they were passing, to hide her sorry face. Just a second too late she realized that the window belonged to a restaurant, a big, white and gold restaurant, such as she had never eaten in.

"Come, let's have something to eat, Honora. You'll forgive me that far?" pleaded Stephen.

Honora sobbed. "But—but—you'll be ashamed of me with this torn coat," she whispered.

"Ashamed of you!" said Stephen and the new note in his voice thrilled her. "Why, Honora!"

He drew her within. They had a table near the window, and presently Honora was brightening over such a dinner as she had never tasted. It's so good," she acknowelged. "I was hungry. Oh, Stephen, I hope you get more than $6 a week."

Stephen bent a radiant face toward her. "I do. But let me tell you, dear, I'd have to have a million dollars a year to keep me here in the city. I'm only staying because of you. I couldn't leave you alone, dear. And when you are ready to go back. I'll be ready, too."

His look grew earnest. Honora studied her plate.

It seemed so strange to think that it was going to be Stephen after all. Without the great adventure, too. But perhaps this was her great adventure. She wondered if Stephen could tell her. Some time she would ask him. Dear Stephen!

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Danny Meadow Mouse never before in all his life had felt so bashful as when at last he stood on the doorstep of the house of little Miss Nanny Meadow Mouse. He hoped she would be glad to see him and he was afraid she woudn't. He just knew that he wouldn't be able to think of a thing to say. The truth is Danny was in love. He had been in love ever since he first saw little Miss Nanny a day or two before. But she might not fall in love with him. It was a dreadful thought because he felt that he could never be happy again if she didn't. Perhaps there was some one else she cared for. The very idea made Danny grind his teeth and long to fight again as he had just been fighting.

How still it was inside! Danny fidgeted about uneasily. Then he peeped inside, which is a perfectly proper thing to do in Meadow Mouse society. The house was empty! Little Miss Nanny wasn't there at all! Danny walked right in and looked everywhere. It was queer, very queer, for he had been quite certain that he had seen her peeping out at him as he started up her private little path. Could she be hiding from him? Or could it be that while he had been so long in coming some one else had stolen her away? Instantly he grew bold. The thought that he might have lost her through his own bashfulness made him doubly anxious to find her.

Danny looked out of the back door. As she hadn't come out the front way she must have gone out this way. Of course! There was just a little faint Mouse scent. It tickled Danny's nose. He knew it was the scent of little Miss Nanny. He followed it eagerly, for that is the way of little meadow people. It led him straight to a big grassy tussock. The long grass hung way over all around. Danny peeped under. It seemed to him that he saw just the tip of a fascinating little tail disappear on the other side of the tussock. Danny started after it eagerly and as fast as he could run. Sometimes he thought he heard little footsteps ahead of him. Round and round that grassy tussock he ran, but though he could run pretty fast for a Meadow Mouse he didn't even catch another glimpse of that fascinating tail. It was quite plain to see that little Miss Nanny could run quite as fast as he could.

Then he had a bright idea. Anyway it seemed like a bright idea to him. He would run the other way and then he would be sure to meet her. So Danny turned around and started round the grassy tussock just the opposite way from which he had been going and his heart beat very fast with excitement, for now surely he must catch little Miss Nanny. But he didn't! No sir, he didn't! He went clear around that grassy tussock without seeing a sign of little Miss Nanny. He was so disappointed and vexed that he could have cried but for the fact that he had outgrown his cry-baby days. It was very plain to be seen that little Miss Nanny was quite as clever and smart as he, and the more he realized this the more he knew that he just must have her.

This time he walked around very slowly, sniffing and sniffing. Ha! There was that faint scent and it led off down a private little path. Danny began to run once more. This time it led to an old brush pile and under this were little galleries in all directions. Danny heard a faint rustle in one of them and off he started in that direction. Then began such a game of hide-and-seek as he never had played in all his life. Dozens of times he was sure that at last he had caught up with little Miss Nanny, only to be disappointed. He began to almost hate that brush pile. And then, just when he was quite tired out and almost discouraged, he saw little Miss Nanny sitting with her back to him and looking out under the old brush pile quite as if she didn't know that he was anywhere about.

(By Associated Press.)

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 20.—Governor Cole L. Blease, here to speak at the senatorial campaign meeting this afternoon, has just received from his secretary at Columbia advices to the effect that the invitation extended to the militia of South Carolina to participate in the joint camp with the regular army for the year 1914 had been withdrawn. The following is the message sent to Governor Blease from Governor's Island, New York, dated June 20, and signed by R. H. Evans, commanding eastern department:

"Under instructions from war department the invitation extended to you to have organized militia of your state participate in joint camp with regular army for year 1914 is hereby withdrawn."

The meaning of this unexpected change in plans is not known here.

BANKERS DENY ENORMOUS PROFITS IN BOND ISSUES

N. Y. Concern Denies Nicaraguan Accusation to Senate in Telegram

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 20.—A telegram from Brown Brothers and Seligman & Co., New York bankers, presented in the senate today by Senator O'Gorman, denying they had profited enormously by Nicaraguan bond issues, brought a demand by Senator Smith, of Michigan, that the bond issues be investigated.

The telegram declared Senator Smith's resolution charging the bankers with large profits was a baseless accusation.

After stating to the senate that he had thoroughly investigated the Nicaraguan bond issues before he introduced his resolution, Senator Smith said:

"On my responsibility to the country as senator, I allege that the indebtedness now sought to be validated and imposed upon the republic of Nicaragua is in the main fraudulent and ought not to receive the approval of the senate."

SOUTHERN RY. DOCTORS END ANNUAL SESSION

H. C. Bahnson, N. C., Elected President; Georgia Man a Vice President

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Physicians and surgeons of the Southern Railway were leaving for their homes today after a two-day convention here. The concluding feature of the meeting was the memorial address on the late Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern, who was killed in a wreck on Thanksgiving day in 1906. The address, an annual tribute, was delivered by Dr. J. W. Jervey of Greenville, S. C., who quoted as the principal portion of his speech excerpts from a minute adopted on motion of the late J. Pierpont Morgan at a joint meeting of the voting trustees and board of directors of the Southern railway held in Washington, December 2, 1906, shortly after Mr Spencer's death.

The convention elected these officers:

President, H. C. Bahnson, Winston-Salem, N. C.; secretary-treasurer, J. H. Hay, Woodstock, Ala.; vice presidents, W. H. Taylor, New Market, Tenn.; W. G. White, Yorkville, Va., M. N. Stowe, Jesup, Ga., and W. A. Muro, Sanford, N. C.

Best Convention Ever, Says This Photographer

HARRY M. FELL. —Staff Photo by Winn.

Harry Fell Has Been Attending Photographers' Conventions for 21 Years, but Declares the Atlanta Meeting Had 'Em All Beat for Business

"The best business convention I ever knew," is the way Harry Fell, who has been attending national photographers' conventions for twenty-one years, stamps the one that closed Saturday at the auditorium.

"While attendance was not as good as in years past," he stated, "all the exhibitors and manufacturers tell me that they have done more business than they ever did before, which, after all, proves the real worth of a convention city."

Mr. Fell has been convention manager for the Eastman Kodak company for twenty-one years, six of which he spent in London, and is known as "the jolly good fellow" of all conventions. In his long experience he says that he has yet to see hospitality to beat Atlanta's.

"When I came to Atlanta the first time," he said, "it was twenty-one years ago, and all the business section was on the south side of the railroad tracks. Then Atlanta was only a small town, and there was much rivalry between New Orleans, Birmingham, Chattanooga and other southern cities to see which was going to outstrip the other. Atlanta? The name wasn't mentioned. But today when one enters the city he thinks he has wandered into New York by mistake. Instead of going to New York to buy what they want, southern people are finding it in Atlanta. It is indeed true that New York is the Atlanta of the north."

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—Thirty-three persons were on board the excursion steamboat Majestic when it sank in the Mississippi river near here early today and of these only one is unaccounted for, a watchman.

The others either swam ashore, were taken off in life boats, of which the steamer carried six, or found safety on the upper deck, which remained above water.

The boat struck against the cribbing of the new intake tower of the St. Louis waterworks at 1:35 o'clock this morning and sank in ten minutes. She had just discharged 900 passengers at Alton, Ill., and was headed for St. Louis, twenty-seven miles below, when the accident occurred.

Greatest of All Human Blessings

The most wonderful thing in the world is love expressed in the helpless infant.

Mennen's baby powder holds and comforts for expectant mothers is the most well known "Mother's Friend."

To be an external application it enables the abdominal muscles to become more pliant, to expand naturally without unnecessary pain from the strain upon cords and ligaments.

Applied as directed upon those muscles involved it soothes the fine network of nerves with which all the muscles are supplied. Those months of discomfort so much dreaded may be avoided and the period of expectancy passed in comfort.

There is no question but what such relief has a marked influence upon the general health of the mother.

In a little book sent by mail much useful information is given to inexperienced mothers. It tells how to use "Mother's Friend" and how to avoid caking breasts. It has been prepared in our laboratory for over forty years and is known favorably to most druggists everywhere. Get a bottle to-day and write for book to Bradfield Regulator Co., 309 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to ask for and see that you get "Mother's Friend."

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 20.—Because of a lawsuit he had instituted, E. M. Tullis, a well-known farmer, whose home is south of Homerville, in Clinch county, was taken from his house to a swamp nearby and so badly beaten with leather straps that he is in a critical condition today. Reports of the assault have just reached Waycross.

Martin Baldree and Randolph Jones, white men, have been arrested, charged with assault and battery. It is alleged that under pretense of borrowing grease to rub on a mule the two men got Tullis to leave his house, and grabbed him at the barn, taking him to a swamp and tying him to a log, where the beating was administered.

Tullis was then taken home in a semi-conscious condition. Neighbors passing saw him on the porch and got medical aid for him. Tullis claims that from remarks the men made while beating him he is positive they were employed to flog him, and he proposes to institute prosecution against more than one as soon as he is well.
